—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BARSTOW, Cal., Nov. 23.

AT TOPOCK, Ariz., where the railroad and automobile bridges cross the Colorado River, modern ways and wild nature are mixed. A flock of gasoline stations lie in wait for touring cars. Men with guns lie in wait for wild ducks and geese, "Canadian honkers."

They are plentiful here. And here the Colorado River, unconscious of all changes, continues to roll as it chooses.

To the east you see green trees and grass growing where the river bed once was. The Santa Fe Railroad has been three times compelled to move its tracks southward, at the river's command.

Part of the old track bed still stands at the river's edge, and recently the Colorado, lazily avoiding a sand bar of its own construction, has eaten the land away within a few feet of the paved highway.

But soon Hoover Dam Wall will hold back these turbulent waters, and the big river, like the rest of us, coerced civilization, will behave.

NEARLY TO the north is the Grand Canyon, most remarkable gorge on earth, cut a mile deep by the Colorado River.

You should see that and the wonders to the west of it, and all this great nation between the two oceans. Coming out here is so easy. Two nights ago you were in Chicago, three nights ago in New York. This afternoon you will see the Pacific.

You have your choice of several routes across the continent on excellent railroads, not forgetting the intensely interesting trip by water through the Panama Canal. If you prefer motoring, your car will bring you here slowly or quickly over perfect roads all the day. Depression time is a good time to see your own country. Traveling, you might see something to make the depression melt away for you.

BEFORE GOING into copper production consult Thomas H. O'Brien, who got off this train at Las Vegas, New Mexico. He is general manager of the big Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, now, like practically all mines in Arizona, closed down, not a man or wheel moving. But state taxes go on and "Inspiration," shut down, has been paying $2,000 a day, more than $700,000 a year, in taxes.

The tax load has recently been lightened by a quarter of a million annually.

Mr. O'Brien and a few mining friends are now hunting gold mines. You can always sell gold.

AT LAMY, where you change cars for Taos, the Las Vegas local judge and sheriff introduce themselves. Both are of Mexican-Spanish parentage, born in this country and as good samples of American citizenship as you will find between the oceans.

Some day the United States will be part of a REAL league of nations, made up of Mexico on the south, Canada on the north, the United States between.

Later, perhaps, the three countries will be one nation, based on consent and interest. Such a "triple alliance," covering the North American continent and confining itself to that continent, would be an alliance worth while. No other nation would disturb it.

AT ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico, the Indian lady who sits on the floor in Fred Harvey's emporium weaving an Indian blanket, has a new baby this year. She had a new one last year, and a new one the year before. All three are with her, two sitting on the floor, the new one in her lap, as she works.

Those Indian babies possess more solemnity than the Supreme Court of the United States and Senate combined.

The oldest, aged 3, is the business man. He doesn't speak English, but holds up a tiny leather purse empty, points and says "um" when you contribute one nickel. A nickel for him, one for last year's baby, one for this year's baby, a silver dollar to the mother, and the Indian family calls it a good day. Her tired smile would repay many silver dollars.

The very old Indian gentleman sits outside, still beating a little tom-tom, gently, selling painted bows and arrows.

IN TIA JUANA, Mexico, across the California border, many drinking saloons, including one bar, longest in the world, have reduced beer to five cents a big glass as a tribute to depression in the United States.

Mexico has no real depression, for every Mexican knows how to work on the land and Mexicans can live on what they produce from the soil, corn and beans plus sunshine, air, water.

CALIFORNIA grape growers will sell wine, when law makes it legal, at $1.40 per gallon, thirty-five cents a full quart. That is a low price for sour wine, although it has been much lower.

In Italy it has been sold at five cents a quart, and fed to horses mixed with their oats. Red wine, mixed with water, its alcoholic content reduced to two per cent or less, one per cent for children, is an excellent family drink. It discourages typhoid and other diseases, affecting the intestinal tract, fortifies the blood.

Family Seeking to Have Reporters Quit Scene

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—The family of Col. Raymond Robins, whose metamorphosis from an apostle of prohibition to a gold prospector and back into his former self is one of the strangest events in the life of a nationally prominent figure, today maintained his mind seemed perfectly strong on everything except the first few days following his disappearance.

John Dreier, his nephew, said he appeared to remember everything of importance about his life before his mental lapse and during the nine weeks he spent in the Smoky Mountain village of Whittier, N. C., after he disappeared from New York while en route to Washington to deliver a prohibition speech he had written for President Hoover. Dreier said:

"He does not, however, recollect what happened during the first few days following his disappearance. No effort has been made as yet to try and clear up that mystery because of the colonel's apparent weakness."

Members of the family expressed a desire that newspapermen leave the scene. Dreier announced he saw no reason for further press bulletins.

Miss Mary Dreier, sister of Mrs. Raymond Robins, wife of the colonel, suggested the reporters ought to go home for Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Robins laughingly said she would "do almost anything" to get reporters out of town.

Dr. Mark Griffin, psychiatrist, said that the colonel would be kept in seclusion in the sanitarium until newspapermen left.

Dry Raiders Seize Holiday Beer Supply

Seventy-five barrels of foamy holiday cheer were seized by prohibition agents today.

In the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad freight yards, agents reported seizing 60 barrels of beer. They confiscated a truck and 15 barrels of beer at Third avenue and Grant street a short time later.

John McColgan, truck driver, was charged with possessing and transporting beer, agents said.

CHILD WARDS DECLARED 'PEONS'

Juveniles 'Farmed' by County Mistreated, Audit Charges

Aroused by the startling disclosures of the virtual peonage system that exists in the maintenance of juveniles in Allegheny County, the County Commissioners have authorized appointment of three women investigators to inspect every home in and outside the county where children have been "farmed out" by the County Court.

The Commissioners' action followed submission of a report by M. C. Conick, chief auditor for Main & Co., at yesterday's meeting. The report, in dry statistics and without descriptive adjectives, tells an amazing story of mistreatment.

M'GOVERN'S PROTEST

Commenting on the report Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared:

"For 25 years the maintenance of juveniles in this county has been a disgrace.

"Any suggested change always has been opposed. Two years in succession I voted to appropriate $5,000 for an investigation of conditions. Both times the other commissioners voted for it to shut me up. Nobody was appointed. Before we do anything we should investigate the homes where these children are placed."

He then moved to appoint three women investigators at $125 a month and expenses to visit every home where the juveniles are farmed out. The appointments will be made immediately.

Conick's report fills 43 pages. Commissioner C. M. Barr, who questioned Conick on his findings, summed up the report saying:

"There are five high points in the report. Inefficiency of the forces, 29 of the 43 employes

1,000 to One Odds Risked by Man to Live

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 23.—Stephen Nandor, 28, staked his life in a thousand-to-one operation today and perhaps won out.

Nandor's skull was split into two parts on Armistice Day in an automobile collision.

To the amazement of surgeons, he not only clung tenaciously to life, but even remained conscious for almost 300 hours with the entire frontal hemisphere of his brain dislodged and five separate fractures in his skull.

They put it up to Nandor last night. Would he consent to a thousand-to-one operation — an attempt to clamp the skull together. Nandor considered the alternative—death or paralysis. Then he grinned:

"Sure go ahead."

Craniologists and surgeons from Baltimore, Pittsburgh and other cities looked on and expressed amazement.

Dr. C. E. Miksch, in charge of the operation, which required an hour, said he found pressure on the brain "which ordinarily would cause instant death."

Dr. Miksch said a piece of bone, weighing three ounces and the size of the average palm of a hand, was removed from above the temple.

Mr. Miksch said:

"The patient's chances to live are still very slim, but his condition so far has been extraordinary, particularly the fact he has remained conscious."

Mandor was given only a small amount of anesthetic, the surgeon said, and regained consciousness shortly after being brought from the operating room.

Mandor talked with his mother and father before and after the operation.

180 PUPILS FLEE FIRE IN SCHOOL

Safe, Children Cheer As Flames Destroy Frame Building

One hundred and eighty pupils of the Trafford Public School, headed by four women teachers, marched to safety this morning as flames swept the one-story frame building adjoining the main school structure.

Two Trafford firemen, Ray Berger and George Venter, were cut on the head and hands by shattered glass while fighting the blaze which razed the building causing $10,000 loss.

Joseph Murray, 69, residing nearby, first noticed smoke curling from the roof and sounded an alarm.

At about the same time one of the teachers saw smoke filtering into one of the four rooms of the frame building. She ran to the other rooms. The pupils were lined up in fire drill formation, obtained their coats and wraps and marched out, leaving books in their desks which were consumed by the flames.

As the pupils congregated in the school yard watching their 15-year-old building go up in smoke some of them shouted:

"Hurrah, we won't have any school until Monday."

Two companies of Pitcairn firemen responded to an alarm. The fire fighters prevented the blaze spreading to the main building, which structure was separated by only 20 feet from the burned building.

Principal H. E. Seville said arrangements would be made to care for the fifth and sixth grade pupils, whose rooms were destroyed, in the main building.

An overheated chimney was blamed for the fire.

PRESIDENT OPPOSED ON LENIENCY

Congress Chieftain Oppose Creation of Commission

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Hoover today served notice on the debtor nations of Europe that America will expect them to meet their obligations due on December 15.

At the same time, however, he indicated he would urge the creation of a commission to "exchange views" with those governments on the general debt question.

The executive renewed his opposition to cancellation and declared further that debts should be treated separately from reparations.

Presumably bearing Great Britain in mind, he proposed that governments suffering from depreciated currencies be permitted to make payments in their own money, under suitable guarantees, with transfers to be effected as the exchange situation permits.

"HANDS TIED"

The President admitted his hands were tied without the support of Congress, but asserted that did not relieve him of the responsibilities of his office, and to that end he made a public statement of his views on the whole debt situation. It ran five pages.

At a meeting at the White House, attended by both Democratic and Republican leaders, the President had proposed re-creation of the War Debt Funding Commission, but had met a flat refusal on the part of the party representatives.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders took the position that to recreate the commission

'SLAIN' WOMAN HIKING WEST

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ida McCutcheon, former school teacher, who reappeared at her daughter's farm in Westmoreland County Monday after being twice reported slain, set out from New Castle today, hitch-hiking her way to Chicago. Mrs. McCutcheon applied at police headquarters last night for lodging and was given it.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Police awaited word today from George Clark, Tarentum (Pa.) traction employe, to prove completely that the body of Chicago's slain mystery woman is not that of his sister-in-law.

First identified as that of Mrs. Ida McCutcheon, itinerant saleswoman, of New Kensington, Pa., police said they believed the body to be that of Mrs. Lottie Davis, 25, after Mrs. McCutcheon appeared at her home in Pennsylvania.

Clark, shown pictures of the dead woman, said his sister-in-law was a much younger woman than the dead woman.

GIRL WITNESS THREATENED

Helen Yost, 21, of North Braddock, a witness in Criminal Court, was walking along the corridor of the Courthouse today when a man approached and warned her:

"You'd better lay off or you'll be on the spot."

Miss Yost promptly told Judge Ambrose B. Reid, identified the man as Joseph Megara, 26, of Braddock. Judge Reid fined him $25 for contempt, and in default of payment he was jailed.

Miss Yost's testimony was corroborated by Miss Betty Cherney, of Rankin. Both are witnesses against two men on trial for robbery—Charles Boley, 25, and Edward Boyle, 26, of Braddock.

They are accused of holding up Miss Yost and John Miller, of Munhall, in Honeymoon Circle, Schenley Park. Miss Yost said she recognized them as casual acquaintances she had met at a party. In the same Honeymoon Circle, Miss Cherney and Julius Lanyi were robbed.

Shaw Sets Five-Minute Limit for U. S. Visit

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw was quoted by Mary Lawton, former actress returning from London today, as saying he would set foot on the United States soon, but wouldn't keep it there long.

Miss Lawton said:

"I asked him about the report that he will visit America when his ship touches at San Francisco, and he replied with a smile:

"'Yes. I will place my right toe, and maybe my heel, or possibly my whole right foot on the shore of America so that the forty-seven millions and all the other millions in that country can rush there and worship the footprint I shall leave in the sand. But I will not go on shore anywhere in the United States.'

"When I asked G. B. S. how long he intended to rest his right foot upon American soil he replied in emphatic tones, 'Five minutes and not one second more.'

"He makes a joke always of his refusal to visit this country, but I believe there is some reason he has never divulged."

When she asked him for his opinion on the presidential election, Miss Lawton said Shaw replied "that it did not matter, over there, who was President of the United States as no one was interested in the matter."

Police Guard City Council From Reds

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh today detailed 50 patrolmen to prevent a proposed Communist appeal before Council for city aid in staging a hunger march to Washington.

Walsh said a Communist group, with headquarters in Walton Hall, Stanwix street, headed by Thomas Myerscough, of 1927 Webster avenue, reputed Pittsburgh representative of the National Hunger March, had been refused permission to appear before Council and planned to invade the council chamber this afternoon.

Inspector Harry Mellon was placed in charge of the detail which includes mounted and motorcycle officers and patrolmen. They will guard all entrances to the City-County Building against the planned demonstration, scheduled for 1:30 p. m.

PIANIST'S WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

An attractive brunette who contends that a famous blonde stole her husband made her bid for divorce in Pittsburgh today.

She was Bertha Jones, of Alpine avenue, who sued and won a settlement from Frances Williams, the Broadway blues singer, for alienation of affections.

Mrs. Jones told Judge James H. Gray, her piano-playing husband, Allan R. Jones, who once was a taxicab driver in Beaver Falls, had deserted her. Not only that, she complained, but when she asked him to come back to her, he replied:

"Why don't you get someone else who would be good to you?"

Miss Williams announced her engagement to Jones while both were playing in the same show in New York. But he, too, was disillusioned about love when all of a sudden she married a trumpet player, one Lester Clark, whom a year later she divorced.

Rain, Snow Forecast For Thanksgiving

Snow flurries are forecast for Thanksgiving though it may be rainy during the early part of the day.

Rain predicted tonight is expected to change to snow as the temperature begins dropping tomorrow. The lowest temperature tonight will be between 35 and 40 degrees.

Yule Tree Uprooted, Stolen From Yard

Somebody who believes in preparing for Christmas early visited the E. C. Sellers home at 512 Delmont street, Belizhoover, early today and uprooted and took away a two-foot Christmas tree from the front yard.

'Majesty' Lacking, Ban King's Portrait

GLASGOW, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Richard Sickert's famous portrait of King George V is "not majestic enough," the Glasgow Art Galleries decreed today in rejecting it as a gift.

Trolley Firm Gets Ban on New Buses

The Pittsburgh Railways Company today obtained a temporary injunction restraining the Community Transportation Company from operating buses until a complaint filed with the Public Service Commission had been acted upon.

The defendants named are the Community Transportation Company, the Community Service Association, an unincorporated body; C. V. Shoup, organizer; L. A. Reichard, Frank Ellis, Edgar M. Myers, Henry Shore, Loudon L. Campbell, George A. Young and John Heinz.

The petition was filed before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court and a hearing set for November 28.

Banker Wills $88,000 With One Sentence

In a will of one sentence, Henry W. Ludebuehl, of 1303 Heberton avenue, executive vice president of the City Deposit Bank and Trust Company, left his $88,000 estate to his son, Richard O. Ludebuehl, by the testament filed for probate. He was a widower.

HITLER WANTS DICTATORSHIP

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler advised President Von Hindenburg today the formation of a government on a parliamentary basis was both impossible and undesirable, and the cabinet crisis could be solved only with a cabinet directly responsible to the presidential authority.

Hitler told the President such an authoritarian presidential cabinet should be authorized if necessary to govern without parliament. The Fascist leader said he was ready to head such a government and place his movement at the disposal of the chief executive for this purpose.

The Nazi leaders indicated they believed Hindenburg was weakening in his opposition to Hitler. At any rate they said all the doors had been left open for further negotiations.

The stock market, anticipating the establishment of a new presidial government, was cheerful. Gains of one or two points were sustained at the close.

Jilted Woman Convicts Former Suitor of Arson

Saul Stolofsky, 45, of 911 Shawnee street, realized today the truth of the adage, "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

He was found guilty of arson before Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis, on the testimony of Lena Greenfield, 35, of 1616 Foreside street, who had pleaded guilty to a like charge and turned state's evidence.

Miss Greenfield testified Stolofsky had promised to marry her if she would burn his home at the Shawnee street address so he could collect the insurance. He told her, she testified, that he had so many bills he couldn't pay them unless he got the insurance.

She sprinkled gasoline in the hall and two rooms and applied a match but bungled the job, she testified, as firemen extinguished the fire without much damage.

Because she failed, Miss Greenfield testified, Stolofsky refused to marry her and continued living with another woman and supporting two children. In retaliation she told police.

Pending argument on Stolofsky's motion for a new trial his bail was increased from $3,500 to $10,000.

BREWERS ASK U. S. AID FIGHT ON GANG COMPETITION

CONFESS FEARS OF RIVALS' 'METHODS'

Strict Regulation Of Permits Cited As One Weapon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Big brewers, believing their rainbow of anti-prohibition sentiment has a barrel of beer at the end, today had begun to lay their prospective troubles at the government's doorstep. The worst of their fears, as expressed to Dr. James M. Doran, director of industrial alcohol, is the gangster.

Representatives of some of the largest breweries, including Ruppert's, of New York, and Anheuser-Busch, of St. Louis, have talked with Doran within the last few days. They told him they feared the gangsters, with his machine-like organization, was getting ready to "muscle-in" on the business, and asked the government to undertake strict enforcement if beer is legalized.

FIGHT OVER PRICE

Some brewers, meanwhile, have aroused beer advocates in Congress by saying they must get 10 cents a glass to make a profit.

Representative O'Connor (Dem.), New York, who came to Washington yesterday with Gov. Roosevelt, president-elect, said "that is too high and they are not going to get away with it." He added:

"If the price of beer is too high the average man will not be able to buy it and that will cut down federal revenue.

"We are not going to have any profiteering, nor are we going to stamp out one beer racket to let another flourish."

This question of distribution—described by O'Connor as a "big fight" behind the scenes between brewers and members of Congress—has been held by many to be the most difficult one to be solved.

Since the election, there have been rumblings of the possibility of gangs turning their plants into legal breweries, operating under permit.

GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE

The attitude expressed unofficially in government circles today was that there could be no objection to furnishing beer-making permits—if and when beer is permitted—to anyone who could comply with regulations and conduct a brewing business on the standards prescribed.

Old line breweries have told Doran they can manufacture and sell beer more cheaply than those who entered the illicit beer field as a racket. But they are not sure their salesmen can meet competition of gangsters' machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and bombs.

U. S. AID APPEAL BACKED BY CITY

Supplementing Gov. Pinchot's request for $5,000,000 relief funds to be made today to the federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation, City Council compiled a report on the sale of $800,000 relief bonds.

The report was made to show that Pittsburgh has met the request of the federal corporation that political sub-divisions match its grants for relief purposes.

In the new appeal Allegheny County has requested $918,000 for its December needs.

Lady Astor Doubts Beer Will Aid U. S.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Lady Nancy Astor, here on a visit, took an axiom from the book of "Pop" ("the best defense is a good defense") Warner, football coach, to block a query about beer. She observed:

"Beer never did anyone any good that I ever heard of. Did it help anybody you knew?"

The questioner said, hesitatingly:

"Well—"

Lady Astor broke in:

"No, beer isn't the solution of our problem in England, and it won't be over here."

Manslaughter Laid To Hit-Run Driver

Apprehension of Louis J. Stasikonis, alias Louis Starison, of McKees Rocks, on a charge of manslaughter today was recommended by a Coroner's jury in the hit-and-run death of Betty Rose Schrecengost, 7, of 350 Island avenue, McKees Rocks. The girl was hit by an automobile in Island avenue, November 6. Testimony at today's inquest brought charges Stasikonis drove the car.

having been recommended for removal; the tremendous cost; the kind of homes these children are placed in; inadequate and inefficient provisions for handling the juveniles in the courthouse and juvenile detention home, and the practice of placing Allegheny County children in homes outside the county."

REFUSED ADMITTANCE

In preparation of his report Conick said his auditors were refused admittance to some of the homes. He said:

"In some cases the people either would not open the door or were 'not at home' when we called."

His report states that "a maximum of four children in one foster home, while not definitely fixed, appears to constitute the accepted standard of social agencies."

Concerning the personnel charged with supervision of the indigent, Conick's report states:

"At the present time there are certain members of the staff who have been recommended for retirement on pension, or as the letter files of the Department indicate, for dismissal or replacement due to their general inefficiency."

Asked by Barr how many such employes are on the job, Conick said:

"There are 29 out of 43 employes who come under this category."

According to Conick there are 159 homes in which more than four juveniles are farmed out, 80 homes in which more than five children have been placed, 27 homes with more than six and five homes with more than seven children. There has been a "steady marked increase from 1929 to 1932 in the number of foster homes having more than four children, although the maximum of four seems to be the accepted standard of social agencies generally in the country."

SYSTEM CRITICIZED

The practice of placing wards of Allegheny County foster homes outside the county is, according to the report:

"A practice which broadens the field which must be covered and decreases the effectiveness of investigators and visitors. . . . Approximately 14 per cent of the foster homes used by the Home Finding Division during the past few years were located outside the limits of Allegheny County."

Further comment on the report as to inefficiency of employes is set forth in a paragraph stating:

"We find that certain employes at present attached to the staff have been heretofore recommended by the chief probation officer for dismissal as inefficient, and other employes have been recommended for pension. Services equivalent to the appointment of additional probation officers to carry on special and regular duties would be made available by replacement of such employes."

The collection facilities of the juvenile maintenance department is described as wholly inadequate by Conick. Of $103,287 billed in 1931, only 12 per cent, $13,132 was collected, according to the report.

Conick praised Miss Grace L. Stokes for her ability and co-operation in making the audit and concluded his report saying:

"We believe that the administrative officers of the department are well qualified and able, if empowered to effect the recommendations, to provide for the wards of Allegheny County better treatment, care and control."

Caretakers in foster homes have been receiving aid from the welfare organizations in addition to the $5.60 a week for each child paid by the county. Investigation disclosed 26 such cases.

EX-LUMBERJACK IN SENATE

SEATTLE, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A former lumberjack, Maj. E. S. Grammer, heretofore unknown in political company, is preparing today to take up his duties as United States Senator from Washington.

The genial, white-haired lumberman was named yesterday by Gov. Roland H. Hartley to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Wesley L. Jones, who until his death last Saturday had represented the state since 1899.

Grammer's appointment gave the Republicans numerical control of the Senate during the short session, and perhaps added another supporter to the cause of liquor law repeal. Although the major refused to commit himself, close friends said "he is convinced prohibition is a failure."

SIXTH STREET STORE LOOTED

An abandoned automobile believed to have been used by thieves who broke into the Cut-rate Drug Store at 124 Sixth street after disconnecting a burglar alarm, was found early today in South Fifteenth and Clinton streets, South Side, a short time after the drug store robbery was discovered. A quantity of cigarets and other merchandise was stolen.

The automobile, reported stolen last night from South Twentieth and Wharton streets, was owned by Victor Riedenskas, of Donora.

The drug store was looted November 6 of 300 cartons of cigarets and $75 in cash.

CARNEGIE VOTE DISPUTED BY LAWRENCE

Three Court Decisions Awaited in Disputes Over Election

With three decisions scheduled today by Returning Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan, affecting the election results in the Tenth and Twelfth Legislative districts, David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Allegheny County Democratic Committee, was prepared to contest the results in the First District, First Ward, Carnegie.

Lawrence said the election board members of that district told him they would swear ballots from their district had been tampered with after leaving their custody.

MISSING BALLOTS FOUND

County Detective David Drexler today was assigned by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, to investigate charges of crookedness and thievery at the election. Drexler appeared today at the returning and recount boards as an observer, he said.

Sixteen missing ballots from the First District, First Ward, Carnegie, were found in the Prothonotary's office. They had been rejected by the district election board. Rechecked by the returning board, the judges held nine valid, and the other seven, void in part.

The judges today were expected to reverse their stand regarding "cumulative" voting in the Tenth Legislative District. Final disposition was awaited for 58 ballots bearing phantom marks, from the First District, Rankin, and 236 ballots from the First District, First Ward, Carnegie, alleged to have been changed from straight Democratic tickets so as to cast votes for the four Republican candidates in the Twelfth Legislative District.

According to Attorney B. B. McGinnis, of the Democratic party, the election board of the Carnegie district in question said there were 581 straight Democratic ballots in the box.

FIGURES OF BOARD

The election board's figures in the legislative fight, giving the four Republicans first, followed by the Democratic candidates, are:

Steedle, 106; Boyer, 99; Westwood, 103, and O'Rourke (Rep. and Dem.), 691, and three Democrats, Rectenwald, 590; Travers, 589, and Harmuth, 595.

PINCHOT NAMES RELIEF BOARD

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has appointed a state committee on workers' security to draft suggested legislation to make "some self-respecting provisions for workers when unavoidable unemployment occurs."

The committee comprises Dr. Francis D. Tyson, University of Pittsburgh; Charles Denby, Jr., Philadelphia; Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Sharpsburg; Michael Heartneady, Hazleton; Clarence P. Wilson, Pittsburgh; R. Templeton Smith, Pittsburgh; Henry Tatnall Brown, Philadelphia; Bart Richards, New Castle, and Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport.

The members must bear their own expense. The Governor expressed the hope that this would not deter any member from serving. In his letter inviting their services he said:

The committee will meet here next Tuesday.

BANK HEAD, TWO BANDITS SLAIN

BOLEY, Okla., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A Negro bank president and three robbers, two of them white men, were shot to death today in a furious gunfight following the attempted robbery of a bank in this Negro community.

All three robbers were hit by bullets from the weapons of H. C. McCormick, assistant cashier, vigilantes and officers. The battle began as the robbers attempted to escape with cash grabbed up while all three were in the bank.

J. L. McCormick, city marshal, and brother of the assistant cashier, led the attack of the vigilantes. He killed the Negro robber.

C. J. Turner, the president, was shot after he set off the alarm. He died en route to the Okemah clinic.

Mansfield Opposes Straight Party Vote

Legislation to prevent vote frauds at general elections will be introduced by State Senator W. D. Mansfield who today outlined plans of a bill for the next session of Legislature.

Mansfield said the bill would eliminate the voter marking party choices and require a cross mark to be placed after each candidate favored. The splitting of tickets, without separately designating each candidate favored, would be eliminated as in the primary election, he said.

FIVE-DAY WEEK LAW URGED

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A resolution urging an amendment to the Federal Constitution to provide for a five-day week and a six-hour day was before the convention of the American Federation of Labor today.

The resolution, one of a score of proposals submitted by delegates, said the proposed amendment would be emergency legislation. It was proposed following a declaration of the executive council for shorter hours.

Though no specific recommendation was made by the council, President William Green in his opening address said the country faces the alternatives of the 30-hour week or the task of feeding a permanent army of millions of unemployed.

Additional resolutions included an assertion that chain stores "grow at the expense of the people" and suggested that steps be taken to organize workers in such stores into a labor union, and a proposal that the federation support modification of the Volstead act to permit sale of draft beer.

Patterson Denies Mayoralty Ambition

Judge Frank P. Patterson, speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday, scouted rumors that he would be a candidate for Mayor in the spring. Declaring his campaign against the rackets was not inspired by personal ambition, he said:

"I aspire to no office, other than the one I hold, which the electorate of Pennsylvania has to offer."

Gov. Roosevelt Wants Simple Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt told callers today he wants his inauguration March 4 to be of the "utmost simplicity" and does not want an inaugural ball.

He agreed on a parade through Pennsylvania avenue, from the Capitol to the White House, but insisted it should not be "too big." Read Admiral Cary T. Grayson is chairman of the inaugural committee.

HOOVER CALLS ON EUROPE TO PAY

President's Proposal Of Commission Opposed

at this time would constitute an open invitation to every European debtor to petition for reduction of their debts.

And in view of the enormous deficit in the Treasury, they did not believe such a course was justified in fairness to the American taxpayer.

RE-AFFIRMS POSITION

In his statement, President Hoover took occasion to reaffirm the position of this government that World War debts to the United States must be treated as entirely separate from reparations claims arising out of the war.

He did foresee, however, a definite relationship between debts and armaments. He said:

"The world economic conference will convene in a few months to deal with matters of the deepest import to economic recovery of the world and of ourselves as well."

"A world disarmament conference is now in progress, and I must reiterate that the problem of foreign debts has in the American mind very definite relationship to the problem of disarmaments and the continuing burden which competitive armaments impose upon us and the rest of the world. There are, therefore, important avenues of mutual advantage which should be genuinely explored.

"It is unthinkable that within the comity of nations and the maintenance of international good will that our people should refuse to consider the request of a friendly people to discuss an important question in which they and we both have a vital interest, irrespective of what conclusions might arise from such a discussion. This is particularly true in a world greatly afflicted, where co-operation and good will are essential to the welfare of all.

URGES COMMISSION

"I believe, therefore, that Congress, in view of the requests made by these governments, should authorize the creation of an agency to exchange views with those governments, enlarging the field of discussion as above indicated and to report to Congress such recommendations as they deem desirable.

"Furthermore, such agency should be so constituted through complete or partial identity of membership with the delegations to the world economic conference and to the general disarmament conference, that under the direction of the President, and with the final decision in Congress, we may take the strongest possible coordinated steps toward the solution of the many underlying causes of the present calamity."

Concerning the requests of England, France and other nations for postponement of the December 15 payments, Mr. Hoover declared:

"As to the suspension of installments due on December 15, no facts have been presented by the debtor governments which would justify such postponement under the principles heretofore laid down by this country."

Roosevelt Off to South; Will Give Debt Views

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt will break his silence on the result of his unprecedented conference with President Hoover late today, he indicated at a conference with newspapermen shortly before he left Washington this afternoon for Warm Springs, Ga.

The Governor was so besieged by Democratic leaders and members of Congress that he apparently desired to think over the situation in his private railroad car before he made public his attitude toward revision of the $11,000,000,000 war debt.

He parried all questions of the press by saying:

"You probably know as much about it as I do."

Gov. Roosevelt did not see President Hoover a second time before he left Washington.

Asked if he would see the President on his return from Warm Springs, he replied:

"Not that I know of."

He declined to discuss the result of a half-hour conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mills, but admitted that the war debts situation was discussed.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Guide Mrs. Garner in Society

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(Universal.)—Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Vice President-elect, will be guided largely in her social activities by suggestions from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who becomes first lady of the land on March 4. Mrs. Garner said:

"My official entertaining will be guided largely by the wishes of Mrs. Roosevelt. As Mr. Garner regards Mr. Roosevelt as his chief, so do I regard Mrs. Roosevelt as mine.

"I don't intend to go in for an elaborate social whirl. In these times there's too much work to do to bring general happiness.

"I do hope I'll be able to give more time to my friends. I have missed their contacts very much. Since Mr. Garner became Speaker my duties as one of his secretaries have increased. You know I've been his secretary for 30 years and I just can't quit. I wouldn't enjoy a social affair if I knew there was work to be done."

Mrs. Garner plans to continue her daily task until March 4 and then she may become a "part time" secretary to the Vice President.

Five Gift Turkeys Ready For Hoover's Table

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Five fat turkeys, the gifts of well-wishers, have come to the White House to form the centerpiece of the simple Thanksgiving dinner the President and his wife will eat tomorrow. The choicest will be selected by chefs. White House aides or charity will get the other four.

To Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Thanksgiving will be a day for hotel here for dinner" offering thanks and resting—"with plenty to eat," a presidential secretary said.

For them it will be their last Thanksgiving Day in the executive mansion before President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt arrive, next March 4.

MOTHER MOONEY IN MOSCOW, HOPES TO GREET STALIN

CARRIES SON'S THANKS TO DICTATOR

Prisoner Credits Red Demonstration for Saving Life

MOSCOW, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Tom Mooney's mother, now 84, here as an American delegate to the Congress of the International Red Aid, may get a chance to present her son's greetings in person to Joseph Stalin, it appeared today.

This is a privilege accorded to few foreigners, but the buxom, white-haired old lady with the kindly, wrinkled face and the vigorous speech brought with her Tom Mooney's "revolutionary greetings" to the Russian proletariat, which he credits with saving his life in 1917.

Her main mission in coming here was to bring a letter from her son in San Quentin prison to "Comrade Stalin" thanking him for the support of Russia's workers in his fight for freedom.

Mooney's letter says:

"If the revolutionary workers of Petrograd had not demonstrated before the American embassy in April, 1917, on my behalf, I would not have this chance to send these greetings from the coffin where I have been confined for 17 years.

"That manifestation saved my life and gave me this chance to share with you the joy of celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of the October revolution."

He ended the letter with the familiar, 'Long live the Russian revolution and the proletariat dictatorship."

It was signed "Tom Mooney, No. 31921."

Mrs. Mooney, living in Moscow's best hotel, expressed lively interest in the prospect of meeting Stalin. She said:

"He's a great man and I want very much to shake his hand."

Peggy's Boudoir Finery Offered at U. S. Auction

PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE . . . HER 'EX-JEWELS' ON THE BLOCK

Seized Clothes Under Hammer Along With $12,000 Jewelry

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The fashion secrets of Peggy Hopkins Joyce's boudoir are being revealed today, in the bleak and dusty storerooms of the Customs seizure room in Brooklyn.

There, on an oak table, lie the crumpled bits of finery that once helped make the much-married actress alluring, someone will buy them when the auctioneer raises his hammer—buy them for "junk."

Ten years ago they were seized when Peggy returned from Europe, now they are just "Lot No. 11" and the government wants to get rid of them.

The only things of real value in La Joyce's forfeited collection are a leather jewel case, made in London, and a jeweled plaque appraised at $12,000. A husband gave her the bauble.

Curiosity seekers expected at the sale, eager to know "how she did it," will find Peggy's taste ran to laces, flowers and glitter; that she wore black, white and pastel shades, never brilliant colors; that she was a perfect size 14.

'SPY'S MESSAGE' IN BLAST QUIZ HELD FORGERY

Black Tom Inquiry Centers on Cipher, Invisible Writing

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The German government today sought to prove before the Mixed Claims Commission that at least part of a coded spy mesage involving German secret agents in the destruction of the Black Tom and Kingsland (N. J.) munitions depots was a fake.

The United States relies on this message to prove German liability for $40,000,000 in damage claims resulting from the two explosions.

KEY TO CODE

The massage, Germany pointed out at final hearings on the cases, used two separate methods to insure secrecy. Across the pages of a fiction magazine of the issue of January, 1917, was scrawled a message written in lemon juice. This fluid was invisible until heat was applied. But instead of names, sets of four numerals were employed. Pin-pricks on various pages of the magazine furnished the key to the names.

Without conceding that the lemon juice writing was placed upon the pages by Frederick Herrmann, a German secret agent, Germany contended the pin-pricks obviously were forged at a much later date.

Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, the German attorney, declared before the commission:

"Would a man like Herrmann, attempting to send a secret message from Mexico City to the United States, after using secret ink and writing this message in a way that it could not be discovered, take a pin and make pin-pricks in the magazine?

MESSAGE READ

The first sentence in the message, which according to the American contention was brought to the United States by another German agent named Raoul Gerdts, stated, "Have seen 1755."

The key to these numerals was found by discarding the first number, reading the other three backward and turning to the page of the magazine thus indicated.

On page 557, tiny pin-pricks under certain printed letters spelled out from top to bottom the word "Eckhardt." This referred to the German ambassador to Mexico, Heiorich von Eckhardt.

Woman Novelist Awarded Divorce

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Because her "exceptional position" as a literary woman enabled her to receive visitors at literary salons in her bedroom, Barbara Cartland, well-known novelist and playwright, today obtained a provisional divorce decree.

Alexander McCorquodale, her husband, had accused Miss Cartland of misconduct with his cousin, who admitted buying her a diamond bracelet and an ascot frock.

WHITEMAN SEES U. S. BECOMING 'MUSIC DUMB'

Hits Neglect of Native Art in Favor of Foreign Opera

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—America is on the road to becoming music dumb, according to Paul Whiteman.

A serious expression played across the face of the man whom Broadway still calls its master of jazz, as he declared:

"I mean it. In eight years we have almost exhausted a music library it took 800 years to build.

"'Billions for foreign music, but not a cent for the creation of American music' seems to be our motto.

'OPERA FOREIGN TO US'

"Why should we spend fortunes for European opera—a form of expression entirely foreign to us?

"In this country a man says to a girl:

"'I'm making 50 bucks a week, kid, let's get married,' instead of all that grand opera stuff of guitars, moonlight and roses.

"In 'The Girl of the Golden West' they tried to make us believe that when a man asked for a drink he said:

"'Give—oh give—won't you give—give me—give me a drink.' Boom. Orchestra brasses, ...

PATRONAGE NEEDED

"Some millionaire really interested in music ought to say to a group of musicians, 'here is an endowment. Now go off in the mountains and slave for four months turning out something good, then give half a dozen concerts. After that you may go back to Hollywood or Broadway and make your real money for the rest of the year if you want to.'"

The usual broad Whiteman smile came back as the orchestra leader recalled his introduction of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," which, he explains, is an example of what American music can be. He said:

"We threw it down their throats and made 'em like it."

He chuckled as he rushed off to keep a string of appointments.

VIGILANTE SLAIN IN AUTO CHASE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—Peter Gibbs, 21, farmer and vigilante guarding against chicken thieves, was killed by a bullet fired from a speeding automobile which he was chasing.

One of eight or nine shots fired from the rear of a car containing two men hit Gibbs between the eyes and he toppled from his motorcycle on the road at New Bedford.

Ed and Clyde Taylor, neighbors, said Gibbs had found an auto parked near the chicken coop on the Nicholas Gibbs farm last night. When he started after the car, the Taylor brothers said, a rear window in the auto was broken and a high powered rifle thrust through and blazed away.

State Police Seek Wounded Hen Thief

Somewhere between Oakmont and Logans Ferry today, state police from Greensburg were beating the brush for three chicken thieves, one of whom received a load of buckshot in the fifth attempt to loot the henhouse of Clifford Reff, Plum Township farmer.

Reff, sleeping in the hencoop with a shotgun, awoke to find one of the thieves wringing the necks of his chickens. He pointed the gun at the intruder and fired. The thief dropped, and two men rushed in. They picked up their wounded companion and fled before Reff could reload.

Gov. Pinchot Sorry Pinchot, 9, Got Hurt

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—To his namesake — Pinchot Phoenix, 9, of Steelton—Gov. Pinchot has written a letter. Little Pinchot was hit by an automobile while playing with a "no parking" sign in the middle of a street.

The Governor said in his letter that he is glad Pinchot was not badly hurt, but that little boys should be careful about playing in streets.

Boy Murder Suspect Captured by Police

WILKES-BARRE, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Frank Stabinski, 20, murder suspect, was captured this afternoon by Wilkes-Barre police as he attempted to draw a gun.

Stabinski is accused of killing Peter Cutler, hardware merchant, and of the shooting of Mrs. Lulu Hahn, of Allentown, besides a half dozen other crimes in the last 10 days.

U. S. GIRL TO JOIN GANDHI IN FAST

DELHI, India, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The American girl, Nila Cram Cook, who recently embraced the Hindu religion, has written a letter to Mahatma Gandhi announcing her intention to join him in his "next fast."

The Mahatma recently went through a six-day period of abstention from food to enforce upon his fellow upper caste Hindus recognition of the principle of equality for the Hindu lower classes or "untouchables."

Miss Cook, who to her Hindu friends is known as Nila Nagini, wrote that the conscience of the "upper castes throughout the world" may be roused by Mr. Gandhi's fast. She said:

"White castes in America may open their hearts to the downtrodden Negroes. Such an awakening would bring into the ascendance Whitman's 'Songs of Universality' over the heresy of separateness."

Nila Cram Cook is the daughter of the late George Cram Cook, the poet, and on December 21, 1931, her 22nd birthday, she became converted to Hinduism and was admitted into the inner sanctuary of the Arya Samaj sect.

GIRL KIDNAPED AND DRUGGED

East End police today were without a clue to the identity of the man reported to have chloroformed and abducted Miss Florence Ferry, 22, of 5885 Ellsworth avenue, last night.

Dazed and wrapped in a blanket, Miss Ferry was found wandering around in a vacant house in Walnut street, near South Highland avenue, by John Clancy, of 5818 Hays street, about an hour after she had been seized, police said.

Miss Ferry, employed in the office of Dr. Milton Golomb, at 5901 Penn avenue, was on her way home when a man stepped from an automobile in Center avenue, near Beatty street and seized her, according to her story to police. When she screamed he placed a pad over her mouth.

The girl told police she remembered nothing from that time until Clancy found her in the vacant house.

Miss Ferry was treated by Dr. Golomb, who said she had been chloroformed, according to police. She had not been attacked or robbed and was unable to ascribe any reason for her abduction.

DAY BEFORE THANKSGIVING: THEIR HOLIDAY CAME EARLY

ROBBER SHOOTS POLICEMAN

A Negro believed wounded as he fled after shooting Patrolman Sherman S. Hickenbottom, of 4915 Penn avenue, in the Fort Pitt School, Hillcrest street and North Winebiddle avenue, last night, was sought today as police questioned his alleged accomplice.

Hickenbottom, a radio scout car patrolman, shot three times, was reported in serious condition in Mercy Hospital.

He and Patrolman Charles Hays went to the school after prowlers had been reported in it. Finding desks in the school office ransacked they began a room to room search.

Hickenbottom was shot as he opened the door of a washroom on the second floor. Through the darkened hallway, Patrolman Hays saw two men flee. He fired six shots and believed he hit one of the men.

Police later arrested Charles Williams, 37, a Negro, at 5325 Breesport street, on a suspicious person charge. Samuel Berry, the school custodian, was said by police to have identified Williams as one of the men who entered the building before the shooting. Williams denied the charge.

Holdup Suspect Here Wanted in Toledo

Fred Prince, 31, who was arrested in his Mt. Lebanon apartment on charges of drugstore robberies here, is wanted in Toledo, O., for numerous holdups, city detectives reported today. They said Prince had been jailed 14 times for holdups in the Ohio city and twice had engaged in gun battles with the police and his intended victims.

Weather Conditions.

Areas of high pressure overlie the plateau region, the Rocky Mountains and western plains and extend along the Atlantic Coast, while these two highs are separated by a trough of low pressure extending from the upper lakes southward to Southern Texas, with centers north of Lake Superior and over Southern Texas. Another disturbance appears in the Far Canadian Northwest. Light scattered rains or snows have occurred and continue in the lake region, the central valleys and southward to the West Gulf, elsewhere generally fair weather prevails. It is warmer in the lake region and central valleys and colder in the western plains, the Rocky Mountains and the plateau district, with little change in temperature over the rest of the country.

LINDY AIDE HELD IN PRISON PLOT

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP.)—Irving Bitz, a police character who figured as an underworld intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, was arrested yesterday in a Brooklyn rooming house. With Bitz was Herman Bennick, who told police he was a salesman.

The men were questioned by police on reports of a delivery plot in the Brooklyn city prison.

Bitz and Bennick were picked up at a rooming house about four blocks from the prison.

The men had with them a powerful pair of binoculars. The walls of the prison could be seen from the window of the room. Warden Harry C. Honeck, of the prison, told police recently he had discovered several escape plots.

Bitz and "Salvy" Spitale were engaged by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as underworld intermediaries during the investigation of the baby kidnaping.

WHARF HEARING POSTPONED

A hearing on the Douglas-Vang wharf controversy was postponed until next Wednesday by Judge James H. Gray today. Meanwhile, he directed, no more suits are to be filed against Vang by Douglas.

Judge Gray said he desired to obtain an opinion of the city solicitor as to the right of John Douglas, Jr., to enter criminal proceedings before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan against Vang and others for failure to pay the city of Pittsburgh wharf fees and penalties. George Vang, head of the Iron City Gravel Company, is seeking an injunction to restrain Douglas from proceeding.

Assistant City Solicitor T. M. Benner said he was studying the question. For Douglas, Attorney W. F. Michael contended:

"Any citizen can institute suits in behalf of the city if officers of the city won't do it."

Douglas insists the fees and penalties due the city from wharf users is around $500,000. He hinted at requesting a grand jury probe of alleged wharf mismanagement.

Manuscript Theft Laid To Scott Enthusiast

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—What has happened to "Guy Mannering?"

Two theories crystallized in the minds of the police today as to the type of thief, who, sometime in the middle of October removed J. P. Morgan's priceless original manuscript of Sir Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering" from the brilliantly-lit Avery Hall at Columbia University.

Some agreed that his cunning in removing the manuscript, a coup rivaling the theft of the "Mona Lisa" from the Louvre, was counter-balanced by an equal ignorance of the fact that his loot has no market value, as any book dealer would know its real owner immediately.

Others held to the theory that he had no intention of selling it, but was a Scott enthusiast and collector who would pore over it like a miser counting his gold.

It was only yesterday that the theft of the historic manuscript became known generally. The facts had been kept quiet with the hope that the thief might attempt to market his prize. It was highly prized by Morgan, as it was the first item of its sort to be acquired by his father as a cornerstone for the present fabulous collection. The very fact of its sentimental value, and that there were other manuscripts in the same glass case of considerable more material value thickens the veil of mystery surrounding its disappearance.

13 WILL SHARE TURKEY DINNER WITH COX HOST

Is "13" really an unlucky number? Whether it is or not, 12 of the 13 who figure in this story feel that they could not be under a spell of much harder luck than they are actually experiencing today.

Tomorrow 12 jobless and needy men—victims of the depression—will eat their Thanksgiving dinner, turkey and all the "fixin's," at the rectory of Old St. Patrick's. Father Cox, sitting at the head of the table and host for the day, will be the thirteenth man at the dinner.

When the breadline at St. Patrick's forms today numbered tickets will be given to the jobless in the line. Four of these tickets will be selected by lot and the four holding the lucky numbers will be invited to eat Thanksgiving dinner with the "father of the jobless." Four more from "Shantytown" and an equal number from "Coxtown" will be selected in the same way. Father Cox has been personally donated a whopping big turkey for this holiday feast and he's going to share it with his "12" club which is really a "13" club.

They'll all sit down to eat at 1 o'clock, they'll be warned not to hurry and the only regret that Father Cox has in arranging this affair is the fact that he cannot invite 130 or 1,300.

In the meantime there are unusual activities around Old St. Patrick's today. Hundreds of Thanksgiving baskets are being prepared for needy families—but not half as many as Father Cox would like to give.

In the meantime the Sun-Telegraph drive to aid the Father Cox Unemployment Fund is meeting with popular response. Every subscription that comes in on the blank printed on this page brings to Father Cox a liberal cash commission which he uses to alleviate the suffering among the hundreds of jobless who come under his care.

FANCIERS SHOW DRAWS MANY

The Pittsburgh Sportsmen's and Fanciers' Show at Motor Square Garden was in its second day today, after an opening day which drew hundreds. The show, third largest in the country, will continue this week, offering an exhibit of 1,400 rabbits and 1,500 specimens of poultry.

Black foxes, fitch, nutrias (South American muskrats), opossums and raccoons, are there in varieties of color and quality. In the rabbit exhibit, which includes 75 types, is a mother 13 years old, that has produced 468 young.

Bantams, pheasants, pigeons, turkeys, ducks, of many varieties, fill out the poultry exhibit, said to be the largest and best in quality seen in Pittsburgh in many years. Over 150 chicken utilities are displayed.

Canaries and ornamental fish have smaller stands.

ROADS ALL OPEN FOR HOLIDAY

Main and secondary highways in Western Pennsylvania will be free from detours and in excellent condition for driving during the Thanksgiving holiday, unless a change in weather should bring snow or ice, the touring bureau of the Pittsburgh Motor Club reported today.

Trunk line highways from east to west have no obstructions or detours, and are in good condition to handle increased traffic. With the exception of a detour on Route 8, between Pittsburgh and Butler, the trunk lines north and south are also open and prepared for holiday driving. With the opening of the Perry highway, Route 19, through the Pymaluning Swamp, an excellent, short road will carry motor vehicles from the Pittsburgh district to Meadville and points in the Erie section.

POLICE CHIEF WEDS TONIGHT

That popular tune, "Now's the Time to Fall In Love," found its followers today in Bridgeville's chief of police and his pretty Sheraden fiancee.

Raymond W. Fink, 30, who has been police chief in Bridgeville for three years, yesterday took out a license to marry Miss Grace E. Malone, 24, of 3133 Jean street.

Miss Malone is the daughter of Thomas D. Malone, city detective, and has been a stenographer for the Duquesne Light Company.

The marriage is to take place tonight in Holy Innocence Parish House, Sheraden.

CITY'S PENSION COST GROWS

The three city pension funds—police, fire and municipal—will cost the city $1,081,968 annually, beginning next year, or $181,000 more than in previous years, Council has been informed. This amount is in addition to fixed percentages the police, firemen and other employes pay into the fund.

Frank J. Owen, who made the survey of the funds, submitted a partial report yesterday and will complete it Monday. He recommended an age be fixed for retirement of police and firemen, pointing out it is now possible for men to retire at 41 after working 20 years and paying in about one-fourth the value received in their pension. With the age set as 60, as now provided in the municipal fund, they would pay about 40 per cent, putting the funds on a sounder basis, he said.

Franklin Man Dies In Railroad Sleeper

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Millard Scheide, 60, a Franklin (Pa.) businessman, was found dead in a Pennsylvania Railroad sleeping compartment today. His death was discovered when he did not arise after the train reached Broad Street Station. Scheide had several hundred dollars in his wallet.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Got a thrill from Walter Lippman, a grand writer, that I would no more miss reading than miss breakfast. Also he made the best radio talk the night of election that was made. Well, he had actually read something I had written about the debts. I couldn't have been much more happy if Messrs. Hoover and Roosevelt had slummed over in my literary pasture. Course he didn't agree with me. But just to be disagreed with by a man like him is a thrill.

Will Rogers

Speaking of good writers, Mr. Brisbane is out here. Months ago on my porch he bet Mrs. Ned McLean the Republicans wouldn't carry eight states. I thought he was crazy. He was by two states. Everything is changing in America. People are taking their comedians serious, and their politicians as a joke. It used to be visa versa. Yours, WILL.

Anxious Tanks Are Preparing To Give Thanks

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Even with beer by Christmas it will be a victory for the drys.

Us wets are going to spend all our money for it. And the drys are going to save theirs.

They'll be better off than they ever were. So will we. Or at least we will think so.

Wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging. He who is overcome thereby shall inherit the earth. Looks like our next Boston tea party won't be Oolong.

Speaker Garner predicts the December Congress will okay tonsil oil. Congressman Britten says that President Hoover will not veto it. Tomorrow is Thanksgiving, so give thanks for that which we are about to receive. Stick in a postscript for the war debts.

We're across the Sahara and we see the oasis shimmering under the palm trees. Only this time we are going to violate the major law of all caravans. We're not going to let the camels drink first.

STATE TIGHTENS CENSORSHIP

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—More effective motion picture censorship in Pennsylvania has been ordered by the State Board of Censors.

The board in conference told its inspectors a close check would be made each month of their work and vigorous prosecution of censorship violations would be pushed by the Attorney General's office.

Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, of which department the board is a part, said motion picture producers must co-operate by showing helpful educational features and eliminating harmful features.

He emphasized the need for protection of public morals, particularly for children, and warned the inspectors their work would be checked at unexpected times. Dr. Rule said:

"Censorship, properly administered, automatically should lead to production of films unharmful to children."

Members of the board are Samuel D. Schwartz, Philadelphia, chairman; Mrs. Blanche L. Davenport, Wilkes-Barre, vice chairman, and Mrs. Mary J. Kerr, Connellsville, secretary.

Chain Store Bandit Gets $15 in Holdup

An armed bandit who last night held up a chain grocery at 200 Hemlock street and rifled the cash register of $15 was being sought by North Side police today.

The thug ordered Miss Catherine Schmitt, 21, of 1214 Esplanade street, a clerk, and two boy customers, Joseph Marino, of 1313 Sandusky street, and Richard Kownacki, of 1320 Sandusky street, to remain still as he looted the register, G. G. Bennett, of 1309 Reddour street, manager of the store, in a rear room at the time, was unaware of the holdup.

Ruptured Men Get $3.50 Truss Free

Pay No Money—Now or Ever, for This Truss

Kansas City, Mo.—A newer rupture method has been developed by a doctor that is so successful he offers to give a $3.50 truss free if it fails. It does away with leg straps, elastic belts, binding springs and harsh pads. Many have reported their ruptures better. Often in a very short time. Others says they no longer need any support. If you are ruptured you should try it. The doctor offers to send his method on 30 days' trial and will send the $3.50 truss free with it. If the method does not help your rupture return it and keep the $3.50 truss for your trouble. If you are ruptured just write Dr. Kaiser, 1961 Koch Bldg., 2906 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., for his trial offer.

PRIEST ASSAILS RACKETS AND POLITICAL AID

An indictment of crime, criminal lawyers, politicians, "rake-off men" and racketeers, and a plea for education, good home environment and healthy training for the child were coupled last night by the Rev. F. J. Huber, director of St. Joseph's Protectory, chaplain of the Western Penitentiary, Morganza and Thornhill, in the final address before the National Council of Catholic Men's conference in Hotel Schenley.

Painting a swift-moving picture of the underworld—how youth reaches it and how he can escape it—Father Huber branded prohibition, divorce and neglectful parents as large factors in the education of a young criminal. He traced the growth of the bootlegger, told of his relations with the politician and the dishonest policeman, and declared:

"If there ever existed blood money in this world, it is the filthy lucre that is accepted for the protection of underworld activities."

The Rev. M. J. Ready, of Washington, spoke of the youth and their crimes—so prevalent that in one city more youths of high school age were arrested during one year than the number who attended high school in the same city.

Other speakers included J. William Gowan, of the Catholic Boy Welfare Bureau, and Attorneys Leonard M. Boehm and John E. Laughlin. Judge Ambrose B. Reid presided.

The crime symposium brought the two-day convention to a close.

MISSION PLANS APPROVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Approval of a number of recommendations made by the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry was voiced by the board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in a statement last night.

Among them were the Inquiry's proposals for cooperation and unity among all Christian forces in the mission field, for the self-support and the genuine independence of the native Christian Church and for the highest quality of service in all lines of Christian work.

The Board affirmed "its abiding loyalty to the evangelical basis of the missionary enterprise"; expressed its confidence in the "character, devotion and ability" of its missionaries, and declared that "while eager for improvement and increased efficiency," the foreign missions, meanwhile, "in its present form and on its present basis is fully justified in appealing for continued and enlarged support."

GORDON'S BANK COSTS RAPPED

Exceptions to the account of William C. Gordon, secretary of banking in charge of the Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue, have been filed in Common Pleas Court by M. C. Blest, Park H. Martin and Thomas K. Hunter, depositors.

Secretary Gordon's account showed $23,546 expense was incurred in handling affairs of the bank up to the recent filing of the account. The expenses of George F. Taylor, Jr., amounting to $1,329.78 and salary of $1,649.63 for the period are protested as improper charges, the salary being termed excessive.

Objections are made to charges of $750 each by Stewart A. Shannon and Harry Shapira for appraisals.

Hoover Train Wreck Plot Admitted Hoax

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Dan O'Connell, chief of the special agents of the Southern Pacific Company, said last night that Charles E. Fish, railroad watchman, had admitted his story of being attacked and shot while he was guarding the right of way near Palisade, Nev., during President Hoover's trip to Palo Alto, was a hoax.

O'Connell said Fish, after much questioning, admitted he had shot himself and made up the story "to obtain notoriety." He said Fish had obtained the dynamite from an old abandoned mine nearby and scattered it near the bridge on which he had declared he was attacked and shot.

'Too Easy' Compliments Halted by Cipher No. 13

CIPHER NO. 14

No. 12 was easy!

In fact "fans" are beginning to "ride" the cipher editor again for having them "too easy."

However, up to the present, there have been no complaints of this nature regarding No. 13—the solution of which is published today.

And, in all probability, even the best of the cryptographers may find a bit of difficulty in solving No. 14 within "bogie" time.

So many original ciphered messages have been received that the editor has not had time to individually thank the senders. But, owing to the length of time in solving them, creators are advised to submit the solutions if they would like to see them in print.

Now for No. 14. It's a nice one and easy—if you know how. There's a key word. Find it.

A few additional tips will be given Friday.

Frequency table gave little hint as to substitution in this cipher. Trial with the plain letter "X" for "E" ("X" 26 times in cipher) and "V" (24 times) as "A," or vice versa, was not satisfactory. The trigraphs and bigraphs were found, "V.X.F." and "U.F." appearing many times, but, owing to this being a telegram, words such as "the" or "and" would not be likely to be common in the message. The reoccurring groups of "W.N.N.V.Z" and "I.W.B." were found. "W" (plain test) was tested as "E," "A" and "N" and found to apply most probably to "A." "Z," a high frequency letter was tried as "E"—and the word "American" was instantly suggested. By the same process the word "Allies" was applied to the two six-letter groups and the remainder of the message deciphered accordingly.

BASKETS GIVEN HILL NEEDY

More than 350 needy families from the Hill district—tomorrow—will enjoy roast pork dinners with all the trimmings.

The Fifth Ward Republican Club, under the leadership of Ward Chairman Harry Feldman, today distributed to each family a full Thanksgiving basket which contained pork and 16 items of canned goods, vegetables and fruit.

Chairman Feldman, unable to attend the distribution of baskets, due to severe illness, was represented by his son, Precinct Detective Ted Feldman. Other members of the club's executive committee participating were Mrs. Fannie Hellman, Alderman Robert Logan and Mike J. Ray.

The baskets were distributed in No. 5 Engine House, Center avenue and Dinwiddie street.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

BRUSHTON FIRE ROUTS FAMILY

Four persons were routed from their home in the third floor of an apartment building at 700 Brushton avenue early today when a fire damaged the basement and first floor of the R. T. Toner drug store.

The fire was discovered by James J. O'Hara while he was preparing a midnight lunch. He led his family—Mrs. O'Hara, two daughters, Mary, 18, and Marion, 16—to safety by way of the fire escape when he found the hallways filled with smoke. A pet canary was saved by Mary.

Damage was estimated at $2,500.

Suspect Absolved In Fatal Stabbing

Joseph Martino, brought here Monday from the Beaver County Jail on suspicion that he was the defendant in a two-year-old murder, was absolved of the charge today by county detectives and returned to Beaver County where he is held on an assault charge. Detectives said witnesses had failed to identify Martino as the man who had stabbed to death Carmine Pascuzzi, of 504 Albion street, March 18, 1930. City sleuths also said he was not the man wanted.

The theft was reported by John Simonds, who identified himself as Kaufmann's chauffeur. The theft occurred between 5:30 and 6 o'clock.

THANKSGIVING -:- Gala Programs Tonight And Tomorrow -:- ON THE AIR

Grand Opera With Lily Pons, Football Games Feature Holiday Broadcasts

Numerous and varied features of outstanding caliber are listed on the air for Thanksgiving Eve and Thanksgiving Day.

Chief among the programs scheduled for tomorrow is the reinauguration of the Metropolitan Opera series for its second season over NBC-KDKA with a presentation of the entire second act of "Lakme." Tomorrow also brings a doubleheader holiday football broadcast via CBS-WJAS occupying a major portion of the day, and Thanksgiving stories in song and drama in addition to the regular headlining Thursday night programs such as Capt. Henry's Show Boat, Rudy Vallee's variety show and Hollywood on the Air.

Tips for Tonight

Heading the Thanksgiving Eve broadcasts is a half-hour NBC Artists Service program on WCAE at 10:30 tonight with Father Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., noted explorer and scientist; Frazier Hunt, famed newspaper correspondent, and and Edward Tomlinson, lecturer and writer, as the principal speakers. Father Hubbard, known to the world as the "Glacier Priest," tells about some of his adventures in the frozen North, where he braved extreme danger to gather scientific data. Hunt recites some of his experiences during a recent trip around the world when he interviewed leaders of several nations, including such personalities as Stalin and Gandhi.

Father Hubbard

Complete symphonic works by Brahms and Tchaikovsky feature the first of a series of two symphony concerts to be presented tonight and next Wednesday night over NBC-WCAE at 9 o'clock, under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Continuing the dramatization of Conan Doyle's thriller, "The Sign of the Four," the story of how Bartholomew Sholto was found murdered is told during the Adventures of Sherlock Holmes broadcast on KDKA at 9 p. m.

Thanksgiving Fare

Lily Pons, celebrated young French coloratura soprano, and Giovanni Martinelli will head the Metropolitan Opera Company cast of "Lakme," the second act of which will be broadcast direct from the Metropolitan stage over a coast-to-coast network, including KDKA, tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Other operatic stars heard in the work, revived specially for Mme. Pons' talents, are Gladys Swarthout, contralto; Leon Rothier, basso; George Cehanovsky, baritone; Aida Doninelli, soprano; Philine Falco, soprano; Minnie Egener, soprano; Giordano Paltriniere, tenor; Marek Windheim, tenor; Angelo Bada, tenor, and Paolo Ananian, basso. Louis Hasselmans will conduct the orchestra.

Miss Swarthout

Leonard Joy, who brought the first all-string dance orchestra to the air three years ago and since has watched the softer, flowing type of music triumph over the blaring trumpets of the "hot" jazz age, returns to an NBC network, of which KDKA is the local outlet, with a 29-piece all-string organization in a new weekly series of programs tomorrow night at 9:30. Chester Gaylord, popular radio and recording artist, will be the featured vocalist.

Two Football Games On Air Tomorrow

Play-by-play descriptions of two of the leading holiday grid contests will be heard over WCAE and WJAS tomorrow.

At 11 a. m., Ralph Gilroy, former Princeton football star and sports announcer for Columbia's Yankee (New England) Network, will broadcast an account of the Brown-Colgate game from Providence, R. I. The conflict also will be broadcast over NBC-KDKA beginning at 12 noon.

Holding the ether waves for the afternoon will be Graham McNamee's and Ted Husing's descriptions of the Penn-Cornell game at Philadelphia for NBC-WCAE and CBS-WJAS, respectively. WCAE goes on the air with the game at 1:45, WJAS at 2.

'Phantom' Winners Broadcast Tomorrow

Official announcement of the winners in the nation-wide contest for the most appropriate ending for "The Phantom of Crestwood," radio play broadcast over NBC-WCAE, will be made twice tomorrow over the same facilities—at 4:30 p. m. and at 11:15 p. m.

The first prize of $1,500 was won by a Pittsburgh girl, Grace Morris Price, daughter of Dr. A. D. Price, of 127 Hazelwood avenue. A prize of $50 also was won by a Pittsburgher, Miss Lorris Gorske, of 176 Walton avenue.

The competition was sponsored by the National Broadcasting Company and the R. K. O. Pictures. The motion picture version of the story will be shown at the Davis Theater, beginning next Tuesday.

Movie Star on Radio

Irene Dunne, popular stage and screen star and former soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, exhibits her proficiency as a songster when she appears as guest artist during the Hollywood on the Air presentation over NBC-WCAE tomorrow night at 12:30 a. m. This will be the first time she has sung publicly since she played the role of Magnolia in Ziegfeld's "Show Boat" on the stage.

Seals Present Grid Experts On WCAE

John D. Holohan, graduate athletic manager of Duquesne University, and Don E. Liebendorfer, assistant graduate manager of Stanford, discuss the interesting points of the two remaining games of the Pittsburgh season—the Duquesne-Geneva at Forbes Field tomorrow and the Pitt-Stanford at the Pitt Stadium Saturday—when they appear as guest speakers during the Trained Seals' program on WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight. Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, interviews Holohan and Liebendorfer, and acts as master of ceremonies.

A program of special interest to youngsters is listed at 4:45 on WCAE today.

Reading the Sun-Telegraph "funnies," Uncle Bob and Betty take WCAE listeners on another mythical tour of the land of comic page characters at 6 tomorrow night.

Perkins' Farewell Tomorrow Night

Ray Perkins makes his farewell appearance in his current series tomorrow night when he broadcasts his usual nonsense and songs over WCAE at 7:30 p. m. The spot he leaves vacant will be filled next week by Carson Robison and his Pioneers, appearing under the same sponsorship.

'Globe Trotter' Silent Tomorrow

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, will not be on the air tomorrow.

Today his schedule of twin broadcasts over WCAE and WJAS is as follows: 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Friday his schedule is the same with the exception of the 2:15 broadcast, listed on WCAE only.

Baron Munchausen To Talk Turkey

Baron Munchausen makes his first annual Thanksgiving Day speech over a coast-to-coast hookup, with WCAE as the Pittsburgh outlet, tomorrow night at 10 o'clock. In keeping with the occasion, the Baron will appear before the microphone with his rusty flintlock in hand, brass buckles on his shoes and his good man Charlie at his elbow. While they're hunting wild turkeys in the rear of the studio, Abe Lyman will provide the dance rhythms.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Ward Wilson added an imitation of a clucking hen to his list of impersonations when he appeared with Eddie Cantor the other night. Ward finds he can do a passable horse-whinny and a cow-moo, too . . . Greta Keller, who with Lee Wiley does the singing on Leo Reisman's Friday night programs, was formerly a dramatic actress in Vienna and never sang professionally until two years ago . . . Lucille Long's first job as a singer came about when she decided that she wasn't cut out to be a book salesman. She went to Canada to sell books but after three days gave it up to become a singer and hostess on one of the excursion steamers plying from Montreal up the St. Lawrence River.

Miss Long

Rudy Vallee has an inseparable companion—"Boy," a Boston terrier and recent gift from one of Rudy's father's friends. The pup appears regularly at radio rehearsal and travels with the Connecticut Yankees when they're called out of town to play an engagement.

Howard Claney, Pittsburgh's pride and possessor of one of NBC's best known voices, admits he was "scared stiff" when he made his debut as an announcer over WJZ in 1927. He had won an announcer's job by reading from a scene from "Peter Ibbetson," a play in which he had starred on Broadway . . . and describes his feelings:

"My first program was a drama—an O. Henry story. In rehearsal, I looked at the microphone and felt a little contempt for it. But when the time for the broadcast arrived, I began to shake like a leaf and thought I would never get through the brief announcement. Even since I have always had a profound respect for the "mike" and to this day I never feel entirely at ease until the program is well under way."

Welfare Fund Within $600,000 of Goal Here

Drive Extended Into Next Week With Success Near

The Welfare Fund jumped ahead $226,000 today, bringing the total subscriptions to within $600,000 of the goal of $2,500,000, with the result that the campaign will be carried into next week.

Cheers greeted the announcement of today's contributions, which boosted the total to $1,900,194.

William P. Witherow, general chairman, announced the drive, scheduled to end today, would be continued with the expectation of attaining the goal set. Luncheons for workers will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

JAPAN DENIES PLOT IN ASIA

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Resuming his defense of Japan's course in Manchuria, Yosuke Matsucka told the League of Nation's Council today that it need not be frightened by charges that Japan has embarked upon a course of conquest in Asia.

For 2,600 years, he said, Japan remained in its own islands without any attempt at expansion despite ample opportunities. That record of centuries, he declared, testifies to "an innate love of peace in our race."

Woman Victim Traps 3 in Jewelry Holdup

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Three young men were in the New York police lineup today as a result of efforts to sell Miss Joyce Gray the pawn ticket for jewelry stolen from her in a holdup of her apartment last Saturday.

Noted Young Tenor In 2-a-Week Series

The young Italian tenor, Nino Martini, recently signed by CBS, opens a two-a-week series of recitals with Howard Barlow's orchestra over WJAS tonight at 11 o'clock.

Martini, only 26, already has achieved an international reputation in operatic and concert circles. He sings "F" above high "C" in full voice, a feat which makes him the only artist of the present day capable of singing the tenor role of Bellini's opera, "I Puritani," in its original key.

WASH OUT YOUR K-I-D-N-E-Y-S— SLEEP FINE

No More Getting Up Nights

So you feel achy all over, miserable and blue? Your head feels "crowded" your nerves quiver, you have pin-and-needle cramps—your appetite has gone and you feel weak as a cat. Don't fill your stomach with tonics or laxatives or rheumatism remedies. How can they help if it is your kidneys.

The job of the kidneys is to strain the uric acid and other poisons out of your blood. They purify your blood, that's all. Now you must not let these acids stay in the kidneys or they'll get back in the blood and poison your whole body. That's why your kidneys must pass 3 pints of "water" a day. Let them fail and you know it. Your appetite goes back on you, so does your pep, your sleep, and your nerves—your back hurts, your ankles and feet may swell up and you feel cranky and sick.

Now see what a wonderful change takes place after you start on Foley Pills. Kidney action increases at once. Out go those acids. Burning stops. Sleep is sounder, and none of this getting-up business. You feel like "somebody."

Your druggist has Foley Pills. Sells a lot of them, because most people know how good they are. Don't cost much either—but they certainly do a grand job. If they don't, your money back any time you want it. ©1932

SPIRIT OF ORIGINAL THANKSGIVING TO PERVADE CITY

INSTITUTIONS PLAN DINNERS FOR NEEDY

Thanks for the bounties of the past year will be offered in home and church tomorrow as the Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks 300 years ago amid the hardships of their first years in America.

The spirit of Thanksgiving will be taken into welfare institutions for the less fortunate, and penal institutions will observe the day with shops closed and special menus for the inmates. Sports and festivals will be included in the holiday programs.

Com. McMillan

Commissioner John McMillan, of New York, commander of the eastern territory of the Salvation Army, will be the principal speaker at a special united Thanksgiving meeting in the auditorium of the Army's headquarters building, 425 Boulevard of the Allies, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Five thousand dinners for children and adults will be provided for the needy at the Salvation Army headquarters. Newspapermen of the three Pittsburgh newspapers will provide entertainment. Cy Hungerford, of the Post-Gazette, will give a chalk talk at 11:30 a. m.; "Seketary Hawkins" will represent the Press, and Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, of the Sun-Telegraph, will present William Benswanger, president of the Pirates, and members of the Pirate squad, including Pitcher Steve Swetonic, of the North Side. The program will be from 11 to 5 o'clock.

Food for workers employed by the Goodwill Industries and their families has been prepared by society women and church and club members. The dinner will be given tonight at the organization's quarters, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street.

VETERANS ASK AID

Officials of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces with headquarters at 1122 Pennsylvania avenue, North Side, said they could not plan the menu for Thursday's dinner. They are dependent on the generosity of merchants. They appealed to service organizations and other groups to remember the less fortunate veterans.

Hospital ward patients will have their turkey dinners, but local officials of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania said the usual festive trimmings will be missing. The medical staffs will not share in the feast, because lack of funds prevents the usual supply.

Needy persons of the Homewood district will be provided with a dinner at the Collier Street Mission, 1303 Collier street. The mission plans to feed 150 persons at 5 p. m.

Industries will be closed for the day and Postoffice employes will have a holiday. Special delivery mail and perishable parcels will be handled according to Sunday schedules and collections made on holiday schedule.

Fraternal organizations have prepared entertainment programs. Islam Grotto will hold a Thanksgiving dance and card party in the Grotto, East Montgomery avenue, North Side, tonight. Tau Epsilon Rho, legal fraternity of the University of Pittsburgh, will hold its second annual Thanksgiving dance at the Morrowfield Hotel, Terrace Grotto, tomorrow night.

Several communities will hold union church services tomorrow morning.

The diamond jubilee of SS. Peter and Paul parish will be observed at 10 a. m. at the church, Larimer avenue, East End. Bishop Hugh C. Boyle will officiate at the mass. It is the twenty-fifth jubilee of the Rev. Casimir A. Schuler.

JUDGE TO SPEAK

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, will be the principal speaker at Thanksgiving services in Poale Zedeck Synagogue, Phillips and Shady avenues, Squirrel Hill, at 8 o'clock tonight.

A special entertainment was staged this morning at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind, Bellefield avenue. Music and dramatics composed the program.

Some of the hardships of the American pioneers will be depicted at Camp Van Kirk, the Y. M. C. A. camp at Ben Avon Heights, tomorrow morning when "Y" boys will put on a sham battle between Indians and white settlers.

The Best Amateur?

AMELIA EARHART . . THE A. A. U.'S BEST 1932 COMPETITOR?

Mrs. Putnam, noted woman flier mentioned at the Amateur Athletic Union's New York meeting as the possible recipient of the Sullivan prize for her solo flight, the first by a woman, over the Atlantic. The prize is annually awarded to the outstanding amateur competitor.

DENIES CHARGES IN DIVORCE CASE

Dr. Daniel A. Ressa, physician and surgeon, whose divorce suit against his wife, Elizabeth, of 6320 Jackson street, was heard by Judge Elder W. Marshall, denied on the stand that he was indiscreet with other women, as testified by Mrs. Ressa.

All witnesses have been heard with the exception of one who is ill and whose testimony will be taken later. The case was adjourned yesterday afternoon to be reconvened when the witness now ill is able to testify.

Dr. Ressa testified that Mrs. Ressa has insulted his patients, humiliated him before neighbors and conducted herself in such a manner that it injured his health. He made a general denial of his wife's accusations. Dr. Ressa in his libel charged his wife with indignities and cruel and barbarous treatment. Judge Marshall ruled out the charge of indignities.

COUNTY INCOME DOWN MILLION

A decrease of more than $1,000,000 in tax collections has put the county debt fund $575,500.97 "in the red" for this year. This amount, together with requirements for January of $446,130, makes a total of $1,021,630.97 that must be paid by the end of January.

The figures were announced by the County Controller, and to meet the situation, the County Commissioners yesterday authorized two $500,000 temporary loans from road bond and bridge bond funds to be repaid from tax collections next year. Delinquent tax collections between now and December 31 may reduce the deficit.

The Commissioners explained they chose to borrow from the county itself rather than from banks. In preparing the 1933 budget provision will be made for $600,000 more than was made for last year's debt fund requirements.

County tax collections are $1,157,617.42 less this year than last, figures submitted by the County Treasurer's office to the Commissioners showed today. Total collections for 1931 were $15,341,704.47 and for 1932 the total is $14,184,087.05. Despite this huge decrease, poll taxes increased from $74,381.50 in 1931 to $86,463.44 this year.

Knoxville Student Elected Phi Sigma

Marcus Denney McDivitt, son of the Rev. Dr. M. M. McDivitt, pastor of the Knoxville Presbyterian Church and a junior at Washington and Jefferson College, has been elected a member of Phi Sigma, national honorary fraternity affiliated with the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Membership is limited to honor students of junior and senior classes.

Mr. McDivitt

Mrs. Brennan Leaves Estate of $31,000

Mrs. Alice Brennan, a widow, of Braddock, disposed of a $31,000 estate by her will, probated today. To her sister, Bridget Sweeney she leaves $20,000. Numerous small bequests are made to Catholic institutions, including $300 each to the St. Vincent De Paul Society, of Braddock; Catholic Church Extension Society and Holy Ghost Fathers of Duquesne University. William F. Brennan, a brother-in-law, is named executor.

Elk Here to Honor District Deputy

Representatives of a majority of 30 Elks' lodges of the Pittsburgh district are expected to attend a meeting Sunday afternoon in the Elks' Temple, Hillsboro street, Sheraden. James M. Kelly, of Sheraden, district deputy grand exalted ruler, will be honor guest. J. P. Werneth, exalted ruler of Sheraden lodge, will be master of ceremonies.

Mr. Kelly.

Film Head to Speak At W.C.T.U. Meeting

Mrs. W. M. Mann, county and state director of motion pictures, will speak at the monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. at 8 p. m. December 6, at Fisher and Owens, Hazelwood avenue.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK
With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Lal, drenched and hungry, headed for the village. There he filled his stomach and changed his clothes. He retired early, for, being expert in the matter of animals, he knew there was a good possibility of a renewal of the struggle between Barra Sahib and Do. Such fights have been known to last for three whole days, and the boy figured it was at least an even bet that Do, encouraged by his success in holding his own against the great old herd leader, would return to repeat his challenge of Barra Sahib's sovereignty. An elephant in quest of mates does not give up easily.

The boy made up his mind, he told me, to be on hand at daybreak near the scene of the battle he had witnessed. The least he could do, he assured me with feeling, was to make an effort to get an accurate close-up of the kind of fight I had always hoped to see.

Needless to say, he was not sure that the animals were going to fight again. The odds favored it, yet there was considerable uncertainty connected with the whole business. Assuming they were going to continue the duel, how could he possibly know when the struggle would be renewed—and where?

CHALLENGER RETURNS

It seemed fairly safe logic that Barra Sahib, painfully wounded, would not move overnight far from the scene of the original skirmish. Yet move he might—and a small distance for an elephant is likely to prove a long distance for a human being.

The next morning, before dawn, Lal set out for the scene of yesterday's hostilities. As he made his way through the jungle he kept pondering the question of whether or not he would witness a resumption of this epic feud.

He turned these thoughts over and over in his mind and before he knew it he was approaching the herd's grazing ground. They had shifted their location only slightly.

A browsing elephant pack disturbs and cracks the brush in a manner all its own (expert animal boys recognize these sounds in their sleep) and Lal knew that once again he was nearing that same pachyderm family. No other herd had been reported in the district. Barra Sahib and Company were having a peaceful breakfast, he told himself, but he quickly changed his mind as he came closer. For suddnly a shrill trumpeting reached his ears followed by an answering cry of the same sort.

Then, before he realized it there was a tremendous charge through the brush and Do passed within 60 yards of him! About 75 yards away, Barra Sahib, head lowered, stood waiting to meet the onrushing pretender.

LEADER WOUNDED

Do, coming on with terrific force, swerved to the right in an effort to sideswipe the old herd leader, but the latter, now used to this trick, swung around to avoid the ivory broadside, and the result was another one of those jarring collisions.

Heads lowered, the animals again started pushing each other around. Do, developing a craftiness that had not characterized his earlier efforts, suddenly broke the clinch and tried again for a side thrust, almost succeeding in achieving it. Lal held his breath as the younger elephant, with lightning-fast footwork, for so big an animal, made a quick pivot and charge. Barra Sahib whirled around frantically and took the blow on his hip instead of his side.

The result was a bad flesh wound; and the suddenness with which it was inflicted, plus the force behind the thrust, sent the old herd leader down on his haunches.

Again Lal thought the show was over. It might have been if Do had been quick enough to follow up his advantage. He seemed to gloat over the agonized trumpeting of his painfully injured foe, doing nothing for a second or two but stand there and take in the herd chief's misery.

In a flash, Barra Sahib was on his feet. He charged his tormentor, putting behind the great forehead that served him as a battering-ram the stored-up rage of two days of violent battling that had left him with no visible advantage. The younger elephant varied his tactics again. Instead of meeting the charge or swerving in an effort to effect a sideswipe, he merely sidestepped — and very nimbly, too, Lal said—with the result that the foe shot right past him.

STABBED WITH TUSK

Barra Sahib had lowered more than ever and, missing the target he expected to hit, lost his balance and once again went down on his haunches. Knowing that Do would now attack from behind, he quickly rose to his feet and swung around to meet the onslaught.

He was not properly planted to meet the shock; in other words, he had not had a chance after regaining his footing to "dig in" and get squared away. Also there had not been time after getting to his feet for him to lower his head sufficiently. The result was that the younger animal, coming on with a tremendous rush, dug one of his great tusks into the enemy's right shoulder.

Deeper and deeper he probed with this deadly ivory weapon, poor Barra Sahib trumpeting madly as the white dagger went in further and further.

The herd leader, in his efforts to push the young intruder away with his forehead, only made matters worse; for the more he pushed the more solidly the tusk became imbedded in his flesh. Do was pushing too . . . and Barra Sahib was beginning to give ground.

PUSHED INTO DITCH

The relentless Do kept shoving Barra Sahib backward, backward, backward. The older elephant, with the wicked tusk buried in his flesh, was helpless. Twice he tried to make a stand, but he only helped dig the foe's deadly weapon in deeper, as before. So there was nothing to do but to keep on moving backward.

Fifteen yards of this weird struggle brought Barra Sahib's hind legs to the edge of an expansive ditch-like hollow. With a great push Do sent the herd leader toppling into this sunken area, his bloody tusk coming out of the flesh and leaving a great jagged wound as the elder elephant went crashing down.

Then Do poised himself for the kill. Stepping back to give momentum to his charge, he lowered his head and plunged forward.

It took Barra Sahib only a fraction of a second to realize his predicament. His side was fully exposed and it meant certain death if he didn't get out of the way. He got to his feet just in time to avoid the twin ivory bayonets—one of them a gory warning—that were heading for him. Retreat was better than being pierced by those terrible tusks. Trumpeting a pitiful song of defeat, the deposed herd leader disappeared into the jungle.

THE NEW BOSS

The victor followed the vanquished for a few paces, then turned around and in businesslike fashion began rounding up his herd. His first move was to go over to where five females were grazing. These he pushed forward, and, having made it plain to this group that he was boss, rounded up the other members of his newly-acquired harem and their young.

One of the females dropped back, not sure whether she wanted to follow this new leader. He soon made up her mind for her. This he accomplished by the simple process of lowering his head and giving her a sample of his gift for butting. Over she went. Then she scrambled to her feet and meekly followed her new boss, who proceeded to lead his new-found family off into the thicket.

Lal had witnessed the jungle's greatest tragedy—the dethroning of an elephant herd leader. Almost without exception such an animal turns rogue, another way of saying that he goes mad. Suddenly deprived of his family, an awful loneliness seizes him.

A demented outcast, he views everything and everybody as his enemy and he tears through the jungle, uprooting trees and destroying whatever happens to be in his path. More than one luckless native has been pounded to a pulp by a rogue elephant.

I know of one case where a rogue practically destroyed a whole native village, knocking down all the nipa-palm huts and uprooting, one by one, all the trees in a two-acre banana plantation.

What destruction Barra Sahib eventually accomplished after his expulsion, God only knows.

Gunmen Kidnap, Rob Tobacco Dealer

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 23.—Harry Schagrin, wholesale tobacco dealer, was kidnaped and robbed of $2,000 and thrown from an auto in a sparsely settled district of the city last night, he reported to police. He said the bandits accosted him as he stopped his car in front of his home, and forced him to drive to his store where they compelled him to open the safe. After getting the money he said they drove away with him in the bandits' car, and threw him out a short time later.

Colds can be ABORTED

(with lemon juice)

Don't waste time with cold remedies that only relieve a cold. If you want to end your cold, abort it. The lemon juice treatment will do it. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then drives all cold symptoms right out of the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will abort the worst cold, overnight. One cold compound tablet will check a cold at any time, for several hours, then when night comes you can get rid of it by abortion. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Since Dr. George Rockwell, famed funny-bone-setter of the theater, has proclaimed November 24 a holiday in all the theaters, corresponding to a similar festival proclaimed by President Hoover for the rest of our fair land, the amusement world will heed Old Doc. Rockwell and give the customers something to be thankful for tomorrow. There will be matinees in the Nixon and Pitt, where "The Cat and the Fiddle" and "Cradle Snatchers," respectively, are holding forth. New screen attractions will come into four theaters, the Stanley, with Joe E. Brown in "You Said a Mouthful;" the Fulton, with Ed Wynn in "Manhattan Mary;" the Warner, with Pat O'Brien in "Air Mail," and the Davis, with Richard Cromwell in "That's My Boy." Incidentally Doc's card intimates that corned beef and cabbage would be a good thing to be thankful for, because turkey is soon digested and forgotten while the reverse is true of c. b. & c.

* * *

Among the memories that linger pleasantly in the minds of those who witnessed the initial production of "Show Boat" in the Nixon a few seasons ago was the surprise occasioned when Joe, a Negro character in the story who was not looked upon as anything but part of the atmosphere, stepped to the footlights and thrilled and thrilled his auditors with his rendition of "Ol' Man River." Joe was played by Jules Bledsoe, who, with several other members of the original cast, will be seen in the revival of "Show Boat" when it returns to the Nixon next week.

* * *

Hugh Banks, who will be seen next weeks in the Pitt with the George Sharp Players in "Whistling in the Dark," will be on familiar boards, for he was a member of the former stock company in that theater for many months. Incidentally he will be playing in one of the hits of last season in New York. The original company, with Ernest Truex in the star part, that will be played here by Banks, is in Boston, while New York is witnessing a revival of the same play with Bernard Granville in the role created by Truex.

Horton Hired By British Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.

His renown having preceded him, Edward Everett Horton is going to see Europe at the expense of the British Gaumont Film Company. Writing to friends in Hollywood, he tells of being signed to play a leading role in "Soldiers of the King," a picture starring the English comedienne, Cecily Courtneidge.

After paying London a brief visit, Eddie had proceeded to Paris and then to Germany when he received a telegraphic offer from Maurice Elvey, who is directing the British picture. He accepted and will be five weeks on the engagement.

What with another offer from UFA and with his frankly expressed enjoyment of the trip, Eddie may be extending his stay for several months. There is small chance of his being back here for Christmas dinner, as originally planned.

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Newly back from Europe, Billie Bakewell is the first of the young Hollywood blades to affect the pantaloon trousers introduced in London by the Prince of Wales. He turned up at the Brown Derby the other evening with drooping checked plaid trousers and a double-breasted black coat. True, there were a couple of hoots of laughter, but all pioneers must expect hardships.... Since Joan Blondell has moved into her new home, she has Peter the Hermit for a neighbor. They share a hilltop north of Hollywood .... Someone sent Mervyn Leroy a two-and-a-half-foot cigar from Havana. He started smoking it last week and expects to be out of the weeds by Christmas .... Buster Keaton is back from a hunting trip in Arizona. He has sent the land-yacht to the garage to be desanded .... Leo McCarey wires that he will be back here in a week or 10 days now. A tour of the late-spots the other evening discovered Elsie Janis and Husband Gilbert Wilson dancing to Ted Dahl's music at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Another party there included Irene Brown, Jose Mojica, Louis Wilson and Charles Beyer .... At the Frolics the same evening, H. B. Warner and his wife made one of their rare excursions into night life.

DISNEY APPLAUDED

The Academy dinner is over and there is general satisfaction over the way it was handled and over this year's awards. Judging by applause, the greatest enthusiasm was for Walt Disney, creator of Mickey Mouse, and for Helen Hayes, who gave that memorable performance in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet.

Called up to receive the statue, Helen nervously told her friends:

"Only two times in my life have I really felt like a superb woman. The first time, all I could think of to say was: 'Gosh, isn't she red?'

"I hope I do better the second time, but I doubt it."

All Hollywood, sitting out there in front, applauded the tiny actress as she stepped off the platform.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. REX, GENOA BOUND.—I am seasick. Nobody can say more in one little line. Have you ever been seasick? If you haven't, you can thank your lucky stars—and stomach. If you have, you'll know that I'm right. There's no worse feeling in the world. With the possible exception, of course, of love.

Yes, my friends, I am seasick. This is a beautiful boat and I would like to tell you about it in this column. I would like very much to describe its perfect lines and its easy motion. I nurse a desire to tell you of gay parties on moonlit seas. But I couldn't be that deceitful. I'm all alone, the boat is doing a shimmy, it's raining like the devil outside—and I'm seasick.

Oh, I know what you're going to tell me. You're going to say that, if I had asked you, you'd have given me the only sure remedy for seasickness. Am I right? Certainly I am. Any person who has so much as ridden on a ferryboat possesses the "only sure cure for seasickness." There's but one trouble with these cures. They won't work.

I've made plenty of sea voyages and each time I started one, my friends have made me try everything from cod liver oil to a bite of an old shoe that had been handed down from generation to generation. I have no doubt that they all meant well—but so does the fellow who issues the marriage licenses.

Yes, indeed. Hellinger has been a sucker for seasickness remedies ever since he was old enough to bawl out a steward. I've tried big pills, small pills and old pills. I've tried walking around the deck until I was exhausted, drinking champagne before breakfast, eating raw liver, tickling the captain's whiskers, and kissing a stewardess after whistling and turning around three times. None of these has ever been completely successful.

You may think I'm kidding about these apparently nonsensical cures, but I can assasure you that I am not. It's astonishing how many folks believe implicitly in the seasickness remedies they suggest. And as an expert illustration, let me present you with the case of Mr. Martin Sampter, for many years one of Broadway's favorite characters.

Some four years ago—it's almost to the day, I think—I was standing in the lobby of the Hotel Savoy, in London. The Savoy is unquestionably one of the finest hotels in the world and I should have been very happy to be there. But I wasn't. I had been away from Broadway for an entire three weeks and I was anxious to get back. I'm wiser now.

Up to me stepped Mr. Sampter, who was and still is, I trust, a successful theatrical agent. I saw before me a smallish gentleman with large horn-rimmed glasses that made him appear not unlike an owl. He introduced himself to me.

"Surprising we have not met before," he said. "Quite surprising. Practically in the same business, and all that. When are you sailing back?"

"Tomorrow," I returned. "I'm catching the boat train tonight and sailing back on the Ile de France."

A look of joy appeared in Mr. Sampter's eyes.

"Splendid!" he ejaculated. "So am I. Archie Selwyn will be on the boat, too, and the three of us can pal around together. How are you as a sailor?"

I shrugged my shoulders.

"Sometimes okay, I returned, "and sometimes not so good. I usually get a touch of seasickness the first day or so, and then—"

He interrupted by wagging a finger under my nose.

"That, my boy," he said, "is where you are foolish. It's the first day that's most important. You should avoid that."

"I'm not arguing," I returned. "But how am I to do it?"

He stepped closer and lowered his voice.

"Mr. Hellinger," he said, "I have made 49 crossings of the Atlantic Ocean. Almost lived on it, one might say. During all those trips I have never been sick so much as one hour. And it's all due to the fact that by following my method one can't get seasick."

I immediately warmed to Mr. Sampter. Here was a man who was going to give me the benefit of his experience. This was not to be a remedy that had been told him by a friend who had got it from another friend who had learned it from his Cousin Minnie's uncle. This was to be the real stuff.

"That's swell, sir," I said warmly. "I was a trifle worried about this voyage. The sea gets pretty rough around this time of the year. What's your big secret?"

When Mr. Sampter told me, I thought at first that he was kidding me. But I soon saw that he was thoroughly serious. His method of avoiding seasickness was to eat a huge steak as soon as he boarded a liner—and then to rest in his cabin for two hours. It was as simple as all that!

"After the two hours have passed," he went on, "you get up and go on deck. From that moment on, no matter how rough the sea, you never feel it. The simplicity of it may surprise you, but that's all there is to it. I'm telling you and, after 49 crossings, I should know. Will you try it on the boat tomorrow?"

I said I certainly would. After all, I could lose nothing.

The following morning, around 8 o'clock, Mr. Sampter and I boarded the Ile de France. I was a trifle ill already because it had been unusually rough coming out in the tender. But Mr. Sampter insisted that I join him at once in the dining saloon.

"Follow my advice, my boy," he warned. "I can see right now that you'll be mighty sorry if you don't. A big steak and two hours' rest will do the trick. I know what I'm talking about."

The two hours of rest sounded swell—but the idea of the steak was too much for me.

"Sorry," I said. "I just can't do it. I'm going to get along with a cup of tea and a piece of toast. But you go to it. And I'll stick with you—if possible."

And Mr. Sampter went to it with a vengeance. The first steak they brought him evidently wasn't the proper size to avoid seasickness, so he ordered a second one. He finished that off with a salad and two cups of coffee, and arose with a satisfied smile.

"Now," he announced, "I retire to my cabin and go to bed for two hours. No more and no less. What are you going to do?"

I must have looked very green indeed.

"I don't know exactly," I murmured, "but I have a rough idea."

My companion grinned and slapped me on the back.

"Walk with me to my cabin," he requested, "and then you can go your way. I'll meet you on deck in two hours—if you're able to be there."

I didn't like that last crack, but I wasn't feeling well enough to argue. At the door of his cabin he spoke once more.

"The next trip you make," he said, "try my remedy. Take it from me, it's the only way."

Mr. Sampter went to bed. The next time I saw him was when the ship was three hours from New York. He had been seasick in his cabin all the way!...

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Paramount Borrows Constance Cummings

Constance Cummings, Columbia's busy young star, has been loaned to Paramount for the feminine lead in "Billion Dollar Scandal." Miss Cummings, who has been vacationing in New York, following her work in the company's "Washington Merry-Go-Round," returned to the Coast last week. Miss Cummings goes to Paramount by virtue of a trade arrangement whereby Nancy Carroll comes to Columbia to play the feminine lead in "Child of Manhattan."

M-G-M Buys Talkie Rights to Play

Talking picture rights to Leonid Andreyev's play, "He Who Gets Slapped," have also been acquired by M-G-M. A silent picture version of this play was made by the same company eight years ago with the late Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer and John Gilbert in the cast.

New Contract Signed By Cary Grant

Assurance that he has established himself as a film personality came to Cary Grant this week in the form of a new Paramount contract. Since signing his first contract last year, Grant has risen to public favor with parts in "This Is the Night," "Merrily We Go to Hell," "Devil and the Deep," "Blonde Venus" and "Hot Saturday." He is now appearing in "Madame Butterfly."

Million in Bonds Used in Talkie

Real corporation bonds with a par value of $1,000,000 are being used at Paramount as "properties" in the picture "Undercover Man." No guards are employed to protect the securities, however, for, although they are the real thing and represent a million dollar investment, they have lost all value due to the collapse of the corporations they represent.

Notes on New Pictures

More than 250 costumes have been imported from Japan for use in "Madame Butterfly," featuring Sylvia Sidney and Cary Grant.

With the completion of his role in Paramount's "Island of Lost Souls," Stanley Fields, veteran screen heavy, finished his thirty-sixth film in 36 consecutive months.

A 10-acre crop of alfalfa and eight acres of shocked wheat were purchased from Southern California farmers to dress sets for "A Farewell to Arms."

Thanksgiving Bill In Sanders

The Thanksgiving eve attraction in Sanders Inn, Freeport road, near Aspinwall, will be Al Carlisle and his orchestra plus a floor show.

Blondes May Now Wear Red

A new shade of wine-maroon which will enable blondes to wear red without violating the dictates of fashion was created by Adrian, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer designer, for Karen Morley to wear in "Flesh," the new Wallace Beery picture. The gown is an afternoon dress, trimmed in metal triangles, with a metal belt of triangle links. Miss Morley is going to have the material duplicated in an evening gown for her personal wardrobe.

'Mind Reader' Ready For Production

"The Mind Reader," First National's expose picture of the fortune-telling and similar psychic professions, is expected to enter production at the Burbank studios in a week or 10 days, depending on the rapidity with which stages can be cleared and sets built. The cast of "The Mind Reader" is headed by Warren Williams, in the title role, and Bette Davis.

Winning Plays to Be Staged Sunday

The three winning plays of the recent Greene Room Studio one-act play contest will be presented in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Theater, Center avenue and Overhill street, Sunday evening. These plays are "A Little Right A Little Wrong," by Edward G. Blaine; "Eligible Mr. Bangs," by Robert Housom, and "Teapot on the Rocks," by John Kirkpatrick. The Jewish Dramatic Studio of the I. K. S. has engaged Chaim Ostrovsky to direct its forthcoming production "Riverside Drive." Mr. Ostrovsky has just come from Cleveland, where he was the director of the Theater [illegible] tions.

Neil Hamilton Gets Feature Role

Neil Hamilton, who has just completed the juvenile lead in Columbia's "Acquitted," has been engaged for the role of Dr. David Graham, in the company's "Child of Manhattan" which will shortly go into production. The play written by Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," was one of last season's Broadway successes, and deals with the marriage of a dance hall girl to a wealthy man.

WE DEMAND PROOF!

...and find it in the eating of all Kroger Foods

KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION scientists make cooking and taste tests of all Kroger foods before they are put on the shelves in Kroger Stores.

"How does it taste?" . . . that is the question the domestic science experts at The Kroger Food Foundation ask themselves and their associates a dozen times, every day. For cooking and tasting is the final test that all Kroger foods are put to before they are approved and accepted for you.

These domestic science experts at The Kroger Food Foundation, with all their scientific knowledge and training, are practical cooks, too. They cook Kroger foods just as you would cook them in your own kitchen. And they judge them for goodness in flavor and in looks, just as you will judge them when they come to your table. They follow familiar recipes—they develop new ones. (They pass these on to you on the labels of Kroger foods and in the Foundation Bulletins.) They take the guesswork out of cooking. They make certain that these foods will cook right and taste right. They prove in fact that science is practical!

This testing and cooking and tasting of Kroger foods is just one of the activities of The Kroger Food Foundation—the "eye" of the vast Kroger organization. The Foundation is constantly on guard to keep Kroger foods up to the high Kroger standards. It sternly prohibits any compromise with quality. It stands as a kindly neighbor, too, ready to assist you with any food problem. The Foundation is yours!

An event of widespread social interest is going to take place no farther away from Pittsburgh than Butler on Saturday, Katharine Phillips, daughter of former Representative and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Washington and Butler, will wed Lucien G. van Hoorn, charge d'affaires of the Netherlands Legation.

The wedding is to take place at the country house of the bride's parents, Phillips Hall, Butler Plank road. Because of the serious illness of Mr. Phillips' mother, the wedding will be small.

The Phillipses will entertain at their Butler home at dinner for their daughter and the husband-to-be Friday evening. They will have among their house guests Olive Whitman and James Duff, of New York, and Andre Caltani, of the Egyptian Legation, Washington.

Mr. van Hoorn and his bride will sail within a week for Europe, and will go to Vienna to make their home. Mr. van Hoorn will be charge d'affaires for Netherlands in Austria and Hungary.

The members of the Woman's Exchange board are beginning to feel like really and truly saleswomen what with their rummage sale so recently over, and yesterday their annual Christmas sale.

Sale at Exchange

The holiday sale was held this year in home of Mrs. Wallace Hurtee Rowe, Morewood avenue, with members taking time off only for luncheon. Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., who lives a few houses away from Mrs. Rowe, entertained a group of co-workers at an informal luncheon in her home.

There were all sorts of fascinating things for sale, and those not sold yesterday may be obtained at the Exchange, Penn avenue.

At Miss Neil Stewart's table there were two exquisite handmade quilts, with unusual designs, and some interesting hand-crocheted luncheon sets, lacy enough to suit the most fastidious.

The doll counter intrigued everyone with the doll children having fascinating wardrobes. A doll's house with handmade and chintz upholstered furniture attracted attention, too.

Doll Counter

There were all sorts of gifts suitable for Christmas presents, and children's frocks and negligees and goodies for Thanksgiving dinners.

Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, who's president of the board, was ever so busy, going from room to room of the spacious home, filled with tables of things for sale.

White-haired Mrs. Herbert Du Puy was serving as a saleswoman, too, and so were Miss Neil Stewart, Neil Stewart Zang and Mrs. Nelson Vance Harper, the former Eleanor Rowe.

Others I recall seeing in the crowded rooms were Miss Sarah Bissell, Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, Gilberta Heckel, Mrs. Moses Atwood, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon.

Joining the procession of tomorrow's brides is Miss Betty R. Herrman, daughter of Howard Herrman, of Dormont, who chose Thanksgiving Day for her marriage to William H. Aikin, son of Mrs. Mary Aikin, also of Dormont. The ceremony will be a quiet affair for the members of the families, in the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church.

Miss Mary E. Herrman will be her sister's only attendant, and Robert Lewis Aikin will be his brother's best man.

A motor trip to Washington is planned and in early December Mr. Aikin and his bride will be at home in Dormont.

BROWN'S SUCCESS AS WINTER COLOR BIDS HIGH FOR SPRING

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Brown is not only a successful mid-winter color in Paris, but it is already being forecasted as a fashionable color for spring. Brown with black, brown with orange, brown with red—these are the four color combinations that are seen everywhere in Paris right now, and which are listed as spring colors as well.

* * *

BROWN WITH orange is the combination used by Fauvety to make the dress-and-sweater ensemble sketched at the right in today's illustration. The dress itself is made in solid brown, with no touch of color contrast. There is a repeated use of the elongated triangle as incrustations to give fullness to the top of the long sleeves and to obtain the fitted line about the hips. The orange coloring—vivid and bright—is concentrated in the sleeveless pullover sweater, knitted in loose weave and in wide, coarse ribs. The belt of brown with incrusted diamond of orange is knitted.

* * *

BROWN IN the soft light tone of beaver fur is the color of the Mirande suit. It is made of one of the new corduroys—a fabric whose coarse ribbings give it a sturdy look, but whose weave is soft as any velvet. Self fabric cut cross-wise, makes incrusted bands edging the inverted plait at the center-front of the skirt and inserted at the sides of the jacket to give the illusion of a slenderized line. The beaver collar is attached about the neckline of the jacket, hanging loose below and crossing at the waistline, where it fastens, via buttons and buttonholes, to the jacket belt.

National Jewish Council Head Speaks Here

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Woman's work in the world has been a humble part. She has led no armies; directed no councils nor been called on in economic conferences, but the responsibility for the educational work of the world is hers. Especially is the education of public opinion the responsibility of women. This was the chief trend in the talk on "A Layman Looks at Disarmament" given yesterday by Mrs. Arthur Brin, of Minneapolis, president of the National Council of Jewish Women, before the Pittsburgh Section.

Mrs. Brin quoted the old proverb, "Men build the roads; women teach little children to walk," as she went on to voice her belief that women will grow in strength and in purpose until the world has learned to rely for security and settlement of dispute on investigation, arbitration and conciliation instead of on poison gas, battleships and submarines.

The afternoon's program also included vocal solos by Mrs. Harry Sadler, with Mrs. A. L. Balter at the piano.

Mrs. Brin was guest of honor at an informal luncheon in the Concordia Club prior to the large meeting in the Y. M. & W. H. A. and at the luncheon she spoke briefly on the work of the national council. Last night she and Mrs. Leo Half, president of the local section, shared honors at a dinner given in the Hotel Schenley by the Juniors of the Pittsburgh Section.

THANKSGIVING DUE TO WOMAN

Editor Won Lincoln's Decree for General Observance

Associated Press.

Pilgrims, dodging Redskins to bag turkeys in snow-covered hills, started the Thanksgiving Day idea in America, but it was a woman who made the last Thursday in November an annual red letter day in the national calendar.

For many years there was nothing fixed or nationwide about this day of pleasant aromas—this feast of roast fowl, mince meat and pumpkin pie. But along came Sarah Josepha Hale, author and editor of the "Ladies' Magazine," first periodical published in America for women.

For 20 years she urged national celebration of Thanksgiving Day. Finally—President Lincoln adopted her suggestion in 1864, proclaiming it a national day of grateful prayer. Other presidents followed his example.

Incidentally this author had other claims to distinction besides being a sort of "Mother of Thanksgiving Day." For example, she published a "School Song Book" which contained, among other things, "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Time has wrought many changes in Thanksgiving Day since Gov. Bradford called for public praise to God after the first harvest in Plymouth Colony in 1621. President Washington recommended Thursday, November 26, 1789, as a day of acknowledgement of "the many and signal favors of Almight God," but the custom was not followed up every year. In 1795, Washington designated February 19 to mark the nation's gratefulness at the suppression of the Whisky Rebellion.

By 1858 the day was proclaimed in 25 states and two territories. The great American holiday—marked by family reunions, the table groaning with good things and prayers to divine providence—was spreading from old New England to the whole land.

THE TIME TO KILL A COLD

—is in the First Stage, While it is Yet a "Dry" Cold!

Now it is known that a cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The first is the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours. The second is the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days. The third, the Mucous Secretion stage. Treated in the first stage, a cold is far easier to kill. As a matter of fact, when a cold passes into the second and third stages it is apt to become settled in the system and dangerous.

Nip a cold in the bud by taking Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as soon as you feel the first symptoms. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine doesn't merely coddle a cold—it kills it because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs, infection and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years this famous tablet has been the relief of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Take no chances with a cold so long as this dependable remedy is available. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drug store in America. Comes in convenient, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. No reliable dealer will try to sell you a substitute.

Is Booze Necessary Before You Can Be Gay?

Do you have to be all boozed up before you can have a "good time?"

Kitty's friends are like that. To their notion a party is just too dull for any good use unless they've put on a lot of Dutch Courage—or somepin'. And after they get going good they don't care what they smash, or scorch—and Kitty's getting tired of it.

"What on earth ails people nowadays?" she wants to know. "When I was a kid we had plenty of fun, and could think up plenty of wit, without ever taking a drink. But now people seem to think they can't enjoy themselves at all on their own steam. I just don't understand it. It all seems so stupid."

Do you understand it?

FRIENDS WANT DRINKS

"Dear Elsie—

"There is so much said about drinking these days that I'd like to put in my oar. (Prohibition certainly has made this country 'drink conscious' as it never was before). I'm about fed up on the way people are.

"There is the bunch that my husband and I go around with, and pretty nearly everyone else, to tell the truth. They seem to think that it is simply impossible to 'have a good time' unless they take on a lot of liquid 'pep.' And I can't get it through my head why they think so. I like a drink now and then myself, but I don't have to have one before I can enjoy myself, or laugh, or think up a joke.

"The first thing most folks say, when they go to a party nowadays is 'Where are the drinks? We can't get going till we've had a shot.' Why? Are they dead from the ears up?

"I'm 31. My husband is 33. We've known each other since we were in grammar school. We've known most of these friends of ours since then, too. Maybe they've forgotten the hilarious good times we had as kids, with never a thought of having to absorb any synthetic enthusiasm first, but I haven't. We never lacked for wise cracks, for gaiety, for a live interest in what we were doing. We could 'get going' on our own steam. Why can't folks do it now?

GET CARELESS

"It's not because they're naturally stupid—these people we know. It's not because they're not naturally full of life and wit. They're all of them intelligent. Some of them are naturally witty enough to write—and sell—clever stuff. But when they go out for fun, they just must have their tipple.

"It makes me sick; and the way they drink makes me sicker!

"Sober, they're decent citizens. They wouldn't think of laying a lighted cigaret on your radio, or knocking over chairs, or smashing glasses or dishes. But when they get to drinking they don't care what they do.

"The last time I entertained there was a hole burned in my good rug, and another in my big overstuffed chair. Most of my glasses were knocked off the table and broken. A Venetian glass bowl, that was a present from a friend who is dead, was taken out of my china closet, dropped and smashed. Liquor glasses were set down on my radio and on a mahogany table, leaving big rings that I'll have to spend good money to get taken off. Two places were burned on my radio. At everyone's house it is the same story.

NICE WHEN SOBER

"What on earth is the matter with people? Not what we're in the habit of calling 'roughnecks,' but people that should know how to act, if training is worth anything.

"These people we know are grand when they're sober, but they don't stay sober long when they get 'on a party.' They expect to lap up everything in sight, and yell for more. They call it 'enjoying themselves,' and think they can't get along without it. Ugh!

"Sometimes I get so disgusted that I'd like to move clear away where I'd never see any of them again; but I suppose I'd find the same kind there, too. This country is full of them, in spite of—or is it because of?—our Noble Experiment with Prohibition.

"And where is it going to end? It seems to me that there is something seriously wrong with people who think they can't be gay or witty without calling on John Barleycorn to help them. What is it?

"KITTY."

Is that a picture of you, Stranger?

If it is, can you explain to Kitty how you got that way? Why you can't find any fun without fuddling your wits and smashing the furniture?

"SOON TO APPEAR"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"The Greatest Show on Earth" sing the autumn winds around the chimneys, wires and high stone terraces of town, and the pines and attic gables of the country, when the spirit of Thanksgiving, smiling, furred, appears and puts on her savory play. And the groaning board is setting for grateful actors big and little.

That everyone may appear there, is the wish that we think is deep in the secret places that worry about other people and their happiness.

That "From the low peasant
To the lord,
The turkey smokes
On every board."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

An Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am just in receipt of a card announcing the engagement of a young man with whom I "kept company" for about a year and a half, and to whom I was informally engaged before we broke up about a year ago.

We parted good friends and I have had a call from him once since we saw each other last.

Please advise me what kind of acknowledgement I should make to the announcement?

How formal or informal must my reply be, if any, and to whom should I address it? I know the young man's address, but I do not know the young lady's address. No addresses are given in the announcement, which is just a card, handwritten.

I am very glad to hear about the young man's engagement, although I do not know his fiancee. C.

Your attitude about this announcement is so fine and friendly and so just-what-it-should-be, that I do hope that you will write the young man a note of congratulations and good wishes. This is the thing to do, and I am sure that he will appreciate your mannerliness and graciousness and friendliness.

Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is an officer in his lodge and I would like to invite the wives of the other officers to luncheon and bridge at a hotel.

As I do not know some of these ladies as well as others, I wonder if you would tell me the correct way to extend such an invitation? M.

The most charming way of extending this invitation would be, I think, to write notes. Something like this:

Dear Mrs. Atwater:

I am inviting the wives of the officers of the ..... Lodge to luncheon and bridge on Friday, the first of December, in the .....Room of the ..... Hotel, at one o'clock. It would make me very happy if you will come. Do say yes.

Friendly greetings and the anticipation of greeting you on the first.

Cordially,
Martha Graham Martin.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Painted Toy May Cause Infection

Man has always suffered various ailments because of his work, but I am glad to say that humane laws have been enacted and in consequence many of the so-called "industrial diseases" no longer trouble us.

Dr. Copeland

Lead poisoning, or "painters' colic," was once a common and serious disease. It is a preventable condition and in these days is only rarely encountered.

Lead can be received into the body in several ways. It may enter by the digestive tract, being carried by contaminated food or water. It may enter by absorption through the skin. It may be breathed in, being absorbed through the lining of the mouth and nose.

However it reaches the victim, the lead accumulates within the body and eventually causes poisoning.

Any worker who is careless in the handling of lead or lead products may become afflicted. Unless proper precautions are taken, lead dust is inhaled, damaging the lungs, kidneys, liver and intestines.

Lead pipes, lead cooking utensils, or chemicals improperly used, may cause lead poisoning. Such cosmetics as face powders and hair dyes, if they contain excessive amounts of lead are capable of causing this ailment. Most manufacturers of cosmetics have realized this danger and removed lead from their products.

The disease may occur in infants and children. At this age it is a baffling and serious ailment. Investigation shows that painted toys, such as blocks and dolls, when licked by the child sometimes causes lead poisoning. Babies have been known to poison themselves by eating the lead paint from their painted cribs. Because of this danger, it is wise to make sure that toys, play pens and cribs are decorated with a paint that is free from white lead.

Lead poisoning causes colic, constipation, palsy and anemia. The gums are discolored and the teeth are sensitive. In complicated cases there are rheumatic pains and unpleasant mental changes.

Frequently the muscles of the forearm become paralyzed, producing a characteristic sign of lead poisoning called "wrist drop."

The steady decline in the number of cases of lead poisoning within the past decade is gratifying. It is an index of the careful study and attention that have been given the industrial hazards. Hoods, ventilating fans, masks, glasses and gloves are a few of the means of protection against the disease now available for the lead worker.

The pure food and drug laws are a further safeguard against lead poisoning. It is demanded that the contents of all packages of proprietary medicines and drugs shall be labeled as to their ingredients. Foods must be prepared under sanitary and hygienic conditions. State and federal supervision of reservoirs, water supplies and drinking fountains guarantees water free from lead and other contamination.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of personal hygiene and cleanliness in the prevention of lead poisoning. Never eat while painting. If you are doing much painting, wear gloves. Change your clothes when you have finished your work. Wash your hands carefully and remove all paint stains.

Brixton Reveals He Wired Owen About Girls

I had been watching Sam Brixton carefully, though furtively, as Lillian verbally flayed him for his diatribe against Dr. and Mrs. Barnes. That Dicky was also giving him carefully camouflaged espionage, I was certain.

There was something about Brixton's criticisms of the heads of Whitney Hall that did not ring true, although I knew him to be the type of man who would flare into quick-tempered and unjust accusations when confronted with any emergency. He would always demand a scapegoat for any misfortune to himself or his family.

But though Helena's hysterical lamentations were plainly sincere, it seemed to my imagination—probably overheated, I told myself severely—that her husband was forcing himself to a display of temper, rather than yielding to it; and the conviction came to me suddenly that the very real fear he was experiencing held some other element than danger to the girls, lively as that apprehension undoubtedly was.

Whatever was back of his uncouth manner, however, yielded immediately to Lillian's onslaught. He was almost ludicrously mild as he turned a protesting face to her.

"Why! Lil!" he said, and I saw her wince at the familiar appellation which I knew she must often have heard in the miserable days of her life with Marion's father, whose associate this man had been.

"I didn't mean any offense, I'm sure," he went on, turning an apologetic face toward Dr. and Mrs. Barnes. "But of course my wife and I are fearfully upset and excited, and we're really not responsible just now. I don't want you to think that we blame you, for we don't. We know you've given the girls every care and safeguard and——"

A SURPRISING QUESTION

"We understand perfectly," Dr. Barnes returned courteously, and I wondered if I imagined an undercurrent of irony in the words. I was sure of one thing. Outwardly the head of Whitney Hall and his wife were according the same courteous, earnest welcome and kindliness to these parents as to the Underwoods; but it would not have been in human nature to refrain from contrasting the two families, and I was sure I knew where the sympathies of Dr. and Mrs. Barnes were concentrated.

"Oh please, somebody, tell me everything that's happened," Helena pleaded suddenly, her voice breaking, and with one consent we all gave way to the need of the stricken mother.

All but her husband. His voice was gentleness itself, but there was an inexorable note in it.

"Just a minute, darling. I must know something first. Has a telegram come for me from my brother, Charles Owen?"

I thanked my particular little joss that every person in the room was so used to sudden emergencies requiring "poker faces" that not so much as a breath indicating surprise greeted his question.

"No," Dr. Barnes answered, "Nothing has come for you so far. I can inquire, however, at once. From where do you expect it?"

His hand was on the telephone receiver, and I threw him a mental tribute. No one would have guessed that but a few minutes before the dignified head of Whitney Hall had listened to our theories that there was a possibility of Charles Owen being the man behind the kidnaping.

WIRED OWEN

"No, don't bother," Mr. Brixton said hurriedly. "It will probably be along. He's in Philadelphia, my brother is, and I knew he'd want to know about this, for he's so fond of both his niece and her friend Marion. I wired his hotel, telling him to wire us here, for of course, we couldn't wait a minute in starting."

"Did you wire Ronald, too?" I found myself asking.

"Of course," Helena said, then at something in her husband's face she cried out! "Oh! Sam, you didn't forget to wire Ronald? I told you to."

"I'm afraid I did, we were in such a hurry," he mumbled, and if his wife did not mentally comment upon his preference of his half brother to Carolyn's brother, in the matter of notification, she was the only one in the room who failed to do so, I was sure.

"Where can we send one now?" Helena demanded feverishly. "Ronald will never forgive me."

"Will you forgive me for my presumption," Mary asked softly, "when I tell you that I wired Ronald before we left the hotel?"

"You did?" Helena cried. "Oh, you darling, clever girl! To think that I—"

Her voice broke off in confusion, but I guessed, as I knew Mary did, that she was scourging herself for the jealousy and dislike of Mary that she had been unable wholly to conceal when the three girls, Mary, Marion and Carolyn, were together.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When reducing, drink six glasses of water a day to help relieve the body of the debris of depleted fat cells. And don't forget the need of ice rubs to keep the tissues of the face from taking on tissue draperies. No use getting back the youthful shape if it brings with it the facial crinkles and ugly sags of age.

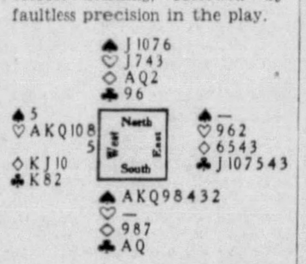
A good water softener is made by combining six ounces of rubbing alcohol with one-half ounce of ordinary household ammonia and one dram of oil of lavender. Pour a teaspoonful into a bowlful of water. It will help do away with sebaceous oil. Wiping the skin surface with a cloth that has been dipped in eau de cologne should be a daily habit with the gals who mourn and lament over nose shine.

Contract Bridge

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing the Cards for a Maximum

A beautiful example of placing honor strength because of adverse bidding, and then playing the cards in such a manner as to realize to the full the trick-taking power of the Dummy and closed hand in combination, was given by Miss Elinor Murdock in a recent Rubber game at the Cavendish Club, New York. The hand was a splendid example of correct bidding, followed by faultless precision in the play.



South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 ♠	4 ♡	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the heart King, and when the Dummy went down, it appeared to Miss Murdock that West probably held both the diamond King and the club King to justify the bid. If this were so, and all the hearts could be eliminated from the Dummy, then possibly West could be thrown in on the third round of diamonds for a forced lead to the major tenace in clubs. At all events, no other course of play seemed to offer as great a chance of success.

The first round of hearts was ruffed with the spade 8. The combined spade holdings of North and South formed a solid sequence from the 6 to the Ace, but it was necessary to conserve entries in the Dummy hand. The diamond finesse was taken at once, as it was necessary for this to succeed if the contract was to be made. When Dummy's Queen held, a heart was led and won with the spade King in the closed hand. Now West's lone trump was extracted, the trick being won in Dummy, and the third heart led from the Dummy and ruffed by the Declarer with the spade Queen. Dummy was re-entered by leading a small diamond, the Ace winning, and the last heart was led from Dummy and trumped with the 9. West's holding in diamonds was now plainly marked, as he had played the Knave and Ten, and his hand now consisted apparently of three clubs, two hearts and one diamond. Therefore, South now led the diamond 9, West won with the King, and had no option but to concede the remaining tricks. To lead a heart would permit a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other, while the forced lead of the club was up to a tenace holding.

TODAY'S QUESTION

When playing Progressive Contract and there is a tie, what should be done about the matter of 250 points for progression?

Answer: Each side should score 125 points, and draw to determine which pair progresses.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

Parents' Fault or Child's

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Every time a child gets into trouble or fails to adjust himself in his little world, it is a signal of failure on the part of the parents.

This observation isn't at all original with me. It isn't original with the group of educators who, two years ago, heartily applauded a wise man who told it to them, expressing their long secreted suspicions. It probably wasn't at all new in 1851, but in that year a man's son was being tried for having written statements which dared to question a certain law. And did the father try to "get to" the judge with a bribe? No, for this, in part, is what he told the jury:

"Gentlemen of the jury, if there is a culprit here, it is not my son: it is myself—it is I!" And later: "In all that my son has written—he has merely proclaimed the sentiments with which, from his infancy, I have inspired him."

The father's name was Victor Hugo!

Perhaps all parents do not as consciously try to "inspire" their children, as did the great Hugo, yet in each act, each reaction to a situation, each example they set, they mould a child unconsciously. But few of them are willing to admit, even to themselves, that they are the culprits, that most of the things a child does spring directly from the way his parents have dealt with the situations and problems that have confronted his easily malleable mind.

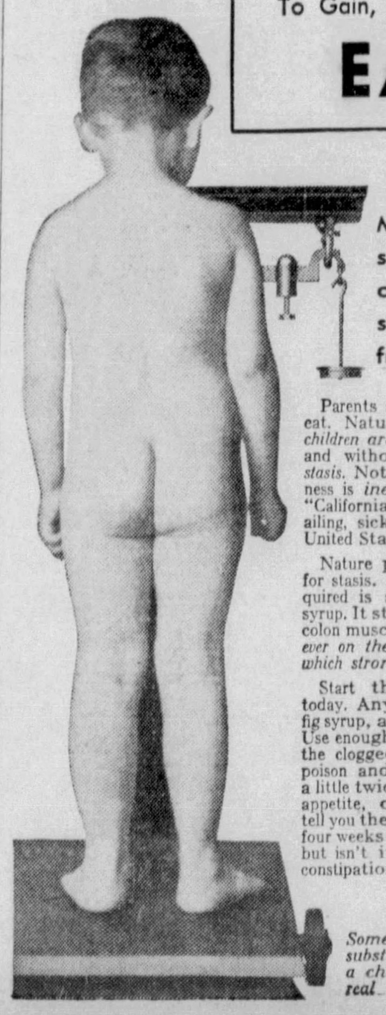
To Gain, a Child must

EAT



Mothers, it is not the stomach, but a bowel condition that keeps so many children from eating.

Parents shouldn't coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Healthy children are hungry. If pale, listless, and without appetite, they have stasis. Not to correct this sluggishness is inexcusable. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for ailing, sickly children all over the United States!

Nature provides a simple remedy for stasis. The only "medicine" required is some pure California fig syrup. It stimulates a sluggish child's colon muscles and has no effect whatever on the twenty feet of intestines which strong purgatives paralyze.

Start this wonderful treatment today. Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. It may take four weeks if a child is all run down, but isn't it well worth it, to have constipation conquered?

CAUTION

Some stores will try to sell a substitute, even when it is for a child! Be sure you get the real California fig syrup.

TEST RELIEFS FOR HEAD-COLDS

Unbiased Medical Research Laboratory Finds Vapex is Safe and Effective

Recent tests made by a prominent laboratory give the first worth-while facts about relieving head-colds.

An inhalant is recommended to cold-sufferers in preference to drops, salves, and sprays, because it is more likely to bring relief.

The seat of a head-cold is in the breathing-passages. And breathing a soothing vapor like Vapex is the safe, sure way to reach them. Sprays, drops, and salves cannot penetrate these inner-passages naturally and bring the same pleasant relief.

Breathing Vapex relieves a cold swiftly . . . clears the head . . . stops sniffles . . . refreshes you. And, above all, gives you extra protection at very little extra cost. For tests prove that the Vapex vapor has a remarkable power to kill germs always present in a head-cold.

So be sure to ask for V-A-P-E-X. The price is now 75 cents at any drug store. Millions of people breathe Vapex for colds. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

RELIEF AT LAST FROM PILES!

Yes, no more suffering! No more pain, strain or itching. No more torture at the stool. No matter what form of Piles you suffer from—painful, itching, bleeding, blind or protruding—genuine relief for you is at hand in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo stops the pain and itching at once. More, it actually tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. For Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus, it not only allays the inflammation and repairs sore and torn tissue, but it actually reduces the swollen blood vessels which Piles are. Thousands say that Pazo is the only thing that ever gave them real relief from Piles. Thousands say that it saved them the need of a painful operation. The method of application (see picture below) makes Pazo doubly effective. Try Pazo yourself and see that it means the end of your suffering. All first-class drug stores sell Pazo in Collapsible Tubes with Perforated Pile Pipe, complete for 75c.

Perforated Pile Pipe Attached to Collapsible Tube Makes Application Correct and Easy

The PAZO Collapsible Tube and Perforated Pile Pipe makes it very easy to apply the Ointment high up in the rectum where it can reach and thoroughly cover all the affected parts. Complete interior treatment in all cases of Piles is plainly important.

WHAT IF BROWN AND COLGATE TIE?

BEFORE TURNING THEIR attention to the Forbes Field battle between Duquesne and Geneva, the Greenlee Field meeting of Wilberforce and West Virginia State, and Carnegie Tech's tilt with New York University in the Metropolis tomorrow afternoon football fans of this district will await with much interest the outcome of the morning struggle in Providence, starting at 11 o'clock, between Tuss McLaughry's Brown Bears and Andy Kerr's Colgate stars. On that result may hinge Pitt's last chance of getting recognition for the Eastern championship and an invitation to the Rose Bowl.

Tuss McLaughry

With neither team defeated or tied, and Colgate not even scored on, many Eastern critics are viewing the Providence game as certain to determine the titleholder and the recipient of the Coast bid. But they appear to be overlooking one possibility. What if Brown and Colgate play a tie? That would mar the records of both in the same way that Pitt's has been marred, and if the Panthers should then go on to beat Stanford Saturday it would be hard to convince any fair-minded fan that the Sutherlands did not deserve to be ranked at the top of the Eastern table.

THOUGH THE DEPRESSION led some of the colleges to shorten football schedules and cut down on intersectional games involving expensive mileage, the railroads have continued to get a pretty good break out of the gridiron sport this season. The activities of between 500 and 600 college teams have made necessary a lot of traveling.

Transcontinental trips have been as numerous as usual. St. Mary's and Oregon State both traveled from the Pacific coast to New York to play Fordham. Before last Saturday's New York booking, Oregon State trekked down to the West coast to show in Los Angeles, next appeared in Missoula, Mont., and goes to Detroit tomorrow.

STANFORD IS DUE tonight in Pittsburgh. Notre Dame will go to Los Angeles to meet Southern California, December 10, and meanwhile Alabama will journey to San Francisco to play St. Mary's December 4. On December 17, Georgia Tech visits Berkeley to face California, and Louisiana State appears in Eugene against Oregon.

And the Rose Bowl trip is ahead for an Eastern team yet to be selected. The longest trip of the season for a single game will be made by U. C. L. A., a Christmas-time trek all the way from Los Angeles to Gainesville, Fla., to meet Florida on December 26.

THE TEAM DOING the most work, as measured by number of trips, even though short ones, goes to Davis and Elkins, which winds up in Latrobe tomorrow against St. Vincent. The schedule called for nine games away from home out of 10. W. & J. isn't far behind, with seven abroad out of nine. Carnegie Tech's trips total six, Pitt's four, and Duquesne made only one. Among the season's leading travelers for major games are William and Mary, seven trips; West Virginia and Western Maryland, six; Notre Dame, Purdue and Navy, five, and Army, four. Princeton made only two trips; Yale, Harvard and Penn, Columbia and Fordham but one each, and New York U. none.

Rogers Hornsby

THERE'S TO BE no half-way business about the turning over of a new leaf by Rogers Hornsby in his attempt to get in shape for his comeback attempt with the Cardinals next year, the Rajah wants it understood. He has started out by joining the Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis at the invitation of Branch Rickey and plans a course of winter training.

Hornsby says he will start work in a gymnasium on December 1 and keep it up until the Cards go South. He now scales 190 pounds, 15 above his playing weight. His old heel and ankle injuries are giving him no trouble, he says, adding that, while not as fast as he was while with the Cards in 1926 he thinks he still can outrun a lot of fellows in the National League.

BILL DAHLEN, once great shortstop, now managing a gasoline station in Brooklyn, joins other old-timers in sighing for the baseball of yesteryear. "They played real baseball in the old days," he said. "It was a game of great pitching, airtight fielding, scientific batting and daring base-stealing. The hit-and-run game and the sacrifice hit were important factors.

"Home runs were comparatively few. A fellow who knocked out a dozen in a season was a phenomenon. The ball has been too lively for the last 12 years. The magnates ought to cut out the jack rabbit and go back to the ball used before the war."

DAHLEN NAMES OLD Amos Rusie as the best pitcher he ever faced. "Rusie had the best curve ball and the most speed," he declares. "He was a natural born pitcher, big and strong, with long arms and nerves of steel. I never saw him rattled. Nothing ever bothered him. His control was marvelous. Mathewson was a different type. He had more baseball brains than Rusie and knew how to pitch to the weaknesses of batters with smarter judgment. Bill Hutchinson and Cy Young were great, too. Hutch had a world of speed and fine control. He thought nothing of pitching 40 complete games in a season. Young had everything—speed, curves, control, endurance, courage and brains. The best left-hander I ever saw was Nap Rucker.

LOCAL GRID FANS will not want for attractive games tomorrow afternoon, even with Pitt idle on Turkey Day for the first time in more than 30 years and Carnegie Tech playing abroad. Ancient rivals and evenly matched, Duquesne and Geneva promise one of the best numbers seen here this season.

And the annual meeting of Wilberforce and West Virginia State at Greenlee Field ranks with the country's biggest and most important Negro sports event of the year, certainly the greatest ever held here, and is a real championship battle. Of 14 previous games, West Virginia State won eight, Wilberforce three, and three ended in ties.

OPPONENTS OF DISTANCE running may criticize long races, particularly marathons, as being more harmful than helpful, holding that they involve too great a strain and sap the vitality. But one man of long experience in that game steps up with some strongly contradictory evidence.

Mike Gibbons

Clarence De Mar, who was a regular winner of the country's feature marathons until last summer, in spite of his 44 years, declares that as a result of his training and steady competition over long courses, he has been sick only 14 days in the last 28 years.

THOUGH BOXING TEACHES the use of the hands in attack and defense, Mike Gibbons, former middleweight star, figures that there's a time when better results can be obtained with the feet. Mike is physical director of the St. Paul police department, to which post he has been appointed provisionally to pare poundage from ponderous policemen. In addition to girth control, Gibbons is supposed to teach boxing, wrestling and other tricks. He is telling the coppers that in time of stress science should be thrown to the winds and the best bet is an old-fashioned kick in the shins. "I want to teach aggressive fighting," explains the former ring luminary. "When a policeman meets a mug in an alley he doesn't want to box an hour to win a decision. He wants to beat him quickly. If fists fail, there's nothing like a kick in the shins. And there's a right way and a wrong way to kick a man, the right way being to shoot the foot straight ahead, not up."

INDIANS DUE TONIGHT; PITT QUITS CITY

By JESS CARVER

Unless something unexpected occurs between now and Sat'day afternoon to knock down the ambitious ears of the Pitt Panthers, there is going to be one whale of a football game out in the Pitt Bowl. The Panthers are going to meet Stanford's Indians in a rip-snorting intersectional battle, with a smacking good chance to get the bid to the Pasadena Rose Bowl as a prize if they can take the Indians by a decisive margin.

The Indians, of course, are going to have much to say about the ambitious plans of the Panthers. Stanford's husky squad is due in tonight, at 8:30 o'clock on the good old Pennsy, but both Pitt and Stanford will give the city the go-by, leaving it to the rival Duquesne and Geneva elevens tomorrow. The Panthers will pull out for a secret hideaway directly after their practice this afternoon and won't return until just prior to game time Saturday.

INDIANS DUE TODAY

Stanford will proceed directly to Shady Side Academy upon arrival this evening, and except for a brief visit to the city Friday afternoon for a workout in the Stadium, will remain on the Fox Chapel school's campus.

There hasn't been as much pep and ginger generated by the Pitt squad since before the Notre Dame game as was evidenced in yesterday's drill. Whether the possibility of getting the Coast bid caused the recently lethargic Cats to snap out of it, or whether it was the approach of the Indians makes little difference; the old fire was back again.

Capt. Paul Reider, who was injured in the Tech game, laughed off his hurts and announced he was ready to go. Dr. Harold Moore, team trainer, concurred, and when Reider and Moore agree, it must be so. Mike Sebastian, the other right halfback, who has a jammed-up shoulder, was just as ambitious. Poor Howdy O'Dell and Dick Matesic, third-string halfbacks, who thought they were going to fight it out for the starting jobs, now are resigned to resting their sturdy frames on the pine.

PITT IN RUNNING

The Panthers are very much in the running for the Rose Bowl plum. Colgate and Brown rate consideration, of course, but Pitt is the team that is wanted and if the boys can click against Stanford, you can just about wager tomorrow's turkey (if any) that the local school will grab off the assignment.

Notre Dame may help Pitt along by beating the Trojans, too. If the Irish go out there and take Southern Cal. the cash customers on the Coast are going to yelp loudly for a view of the team that beat the Ramblers, and things being such as they are, when the cash customer yelps, the boys seeking to relieve him of his dough lend attentive, very, very attentive, ears.

But beating this Stanford club is going to be no cinch. True, the Palo Altoans have dropped three games this fall and been held to a tie, but they come here with a swell intersectional record, especially against Eastern opponents, and ask only one thing—a dry field to put on their Warner hocus-pocus.

And Stanford is big. The Indians must be a six-no-count team—six feet tall or get a job carrying water. They grow 'em big out there in California and it looks like Pop grabbed off his share.

The varsity elevens of Duquesne University and Geneva College will taper off today for the twelfth renewal of their 32-year-old gridiron rivalry, the teams being scheduled to clash here tomorrow at Forbes Field.

The contest looms as a tossup. Both teams have been beaten twice, the Dukes by Pitt and West Virginia Wesleyan and Geneva by Waynesburg and Carnegie Tech. Duquesne sports a more formidable record, its triumphs over Wash-Jeff and West Virginia taking rank over any of Geneva's victories. The Covenanters failed in their major Class B test, losing to Waynesburg on Armistice Day in the game that settled the Class B and Tri-State Conference championship, but the Covenanters, with a crack first backfield and a powerful line, and possessing a dangerous aerial attack, may be counted upon to rise to the heights in tomorrow's game.

SULLIVAN IN HOSPITAL

Larry Sullivan, Dukes' first-string quarterback, was taken to the Mercy Hospital this morning suffering from injuries received in the Catholic U. game last Friday night at Washington, D. C., thus ending his career as a player in the same room with Ben Pawlina, another Duke, who is laid up with a broken leg.

Sullivan was bruised about the nose and mouth in Friday's game and last night began bleeding, prompting the Duquesne officials to rush him to the hospital to prevent a possible infection.

The practice session and skull drill yesterday gave indication of the earnest manner with which the Dukes are taking tomorrow's clash. Howard Harpster's men are certain to be primed. There is little doubt in Duquesne minds but that the Covenanters will follow their traditional habit of playing their best ball against the Dukes.

A hard-running attack behind a strong line would seem to be the Duke forte this season. That is doubtless the dish which the local gridders will set before Turkey Day fans tomorrow afternoon.

GENEVA HOLDS EDGE

With plenty of reduced price tickets still vailable the fans are expected to turn out in great style to see the 32-year rivals do battle. The Geneva-Duke record, which extends over a period of three-score years, gives all of the advantage to the visiting team tomorrow, with the exception of the 1901, 1929 and 1931 games.

Geneva will present its crack trio of offensive threats, Cliff Aultman, veteran end; Art Grahame, southpaw quarterback star and Shorty Trioana, clever stepping halfback. Trioana may not start the game, Dick Jones being a possibility to be in action at right halfback for the opening kickoff. Jones, a former South Hills High School all-round star, has been shifted from fullback to halfback this year and has been playing fine ball.

The history of the Duquesne-Geneva series follows:

1900—Duquesne	0—Geneva	5
1901—Duquesne	27—Geneva	0
1902—Duquesne	0—Geneva	17
1921—Duquesne	0—Geneva	9
1925—Duquesne	0—Geneva	7
1926—Duquesne	0—Geneva	56
1927—Duquesne	0—Geneva	20
1928—Duquesne	0—Geneva	7
1929—Duquesne	27—Geneva	7
1930—Duquesne	0—Geneva	7
1931—Duquesne	13—Geneva	7

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Not the least of the interesting sidelights involved in the Brown-Colgate football clash tomorrow will be the duel of wits between Coaches Andy Kerr and De Ormond (Tuss) McLaughry, two of the East's brainiest teachers of the game.

Both are worshippers at the shrine of the famous play-maker, Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner, but they've evolved strikingly dissimilar examples of the Warner system.

McLaughry, in fact, has gone a long step past the master with the triple-wing attack that has baffled every team Brown has faced this year.

Kerr, at Colgate, uses the standard double-wing formation but his gifted backs have loaded it up with all the deception in the world as the Red Raiders' rivals this season will be quite ready to testify.

Both elevens are primed for the battle. Colgate has been installed a slight favorite, though competent observers refused to give the Red Raiders much of an edge over the Brown team, which has been able to rise to every occasion this fall.

This match of undefeated and untied teams has conspired to shunt other eastern Thanksgiving Day attractions pretty much into the background, but there will be no lack of customers at the annual struggle at Philadelphia between Cornell and Pennsylvania.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The St. Vincent College Bearcats close one of their greatest seasons when they play Davis and Elkins at Latrobe tomorrow afternoon . . . They have won five games, lost one and tied one to date under the new coaching regime of Gene Edwards and rate as one of the best Class B college teams in Western Pennsylvania.

Stanford's game with Pitt at the Stadium on Saturday marks the third invasion of the East by the Cardinals in five seasons. . . . They defeated the Army, 26-0, in 1928, and Dartmouth, 32-6, last fall. . . . Both of these games followed the annual "big game" with California, and the Pitt battle is similarly placed on the schedule. . . . Meaning what? . . . Pop Warner, the Stanford coach, was the mentor of the Pitt elevens from 1915 to 1923, inclusive, being succeeded by Jock Sutherland, a guard on the Pitt teams of 1915-16-17, with whom he matches wits on Saturday.

Johnny Sullivan, of McKeesport, claims the hard luck championship among boxing managers. . . He recently had three boxers on a card and two of them turned up sick and couldn't fight and the other one was knocked out. . . . Ray Alvis, manager of Jackie Fields, says the welterweight champion's recent eye trouble consisted of a detached retina. . . . Three operations were performed before the retina was reattached, and Fields made a trip to Vienna to consult a world famous specialist before he was convinced the eye was as good as ever. . . . Now he's getting ready to defend his title against Young Corbett in California, on February 22, and hopes to recoup his fortune. . . . Singularly, the injury was not received in the ring, but in an automobile collision which followed his bout with Henry Firpo at Louisville on the eve of the last Kentucky Derby.

Army and Notre Dame, which meet in New York Saturday, have opposed only one common foe, Pitt, and the Panthers took both within three Saturdays, downing the Army, 18-13, and Notre Dame, 12-0 . . . On comparative scores, that makes the Army seven points better than the Irish—how are you betting? . . . There is no line of figuring between Colgate and Brown, which clash in the big elimination of unbeaten and untied teams in the East at Providence tomorrow, none of their opponents having been the same.

—HARRY KECK.

Grove City, Thiel To Battle Today

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 23.—The Grove City and Thiel College football teams will complete their campaigns here this afternoon as they clash in their annual tussle. The game originally was scheduled for last Saturday, but was postponed because of rain and a wet gridiron.

Neither eleven has made much of a record this fall, but a victory today will serve to brighten the otherwise drab season. Grove City rules a slight favorite.

St. Mary's Gridders Draw Suspensions

MORAGA, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Angel Brovelli, sensational fullback, and Mike Steponovich, first-string guard, of the St. Mary's College football team, were under temporary suspension yesterday as the result of breaking training rules.

POLO TEAM DRILLS

Poloists of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery last night went through their final workout in preparation for their Thanksgiving Day battle at the Hunt Armory with the South Park mallet wielders. The entire polo contingent of the regiment turned out for the final skirmish under the direction of Lieut. M. M. Watson, coach and captain. Much attention was devoted to individual stroking, which was lamentably weak in the first three chukkers of the Charleroi engagement last Saturday.

TECH ARRIVES IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Twenty-eight Carnegie Tech football players, with an attending coterie of coaches, trainers and managers, arrived here early this morning prepared to renew gridiron rivalry with New York University at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

It will be the seventh meeting of the Plaid and the Violet, and the Tartans will be seeking their second victory of the series. Only in 1929 were the Pittsburghers able to take New York's measure, and that by a 20 to 0 score. New York had the distinction of spoiling Carnegie's otherwise perfect record in 1928.

Head Coach Bob Waddell was in charge of the party that arrived this morning. Advisory Coach Wally Steffen will join the team later today, probably in time for the final practice, which is scheduled for the Stadium gridiron at 2 o'clock.

Tacklers Plummer and Nutter were left behind, one suffering from injuries received in the Pitt game and the other with an attack of influenza. Bill Spisak, injured left halfback, was brought on the trip, but will not be in uniform, his dislocated elbow still bothering him.

With Plummer unavailable, the Plaid coaches will probably start Carl Forsman, letterman last year, at right tackle, although there is a chance that Jacques Croissant will draw the job at the opening whistle.

Waddell announced this morning that Stuart Dueger would be at quarterback, but that he was undecided whether to start Tom Coulter or Johnny Sayles at left halfback, and Joe Mihm or Jerry O'Toole at fullback. The weather will determine those selections, for both Coulter and Mihm are better on dry days.

The squad is scheduled to return to Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Washington, Langley Win Soccer Titles

Washington Trade School won the senior scholastic soccer title and Langley captured junior honors yesterday afternoon as the 1932 city high school soccer campaign came to a close.

Washington annexed its crown by beating Vocational, 1 to 0, in a hard-fought game, Marsenac scored the goal in the fourth overtime period.

Langley defeated Somers, 1 to 0, in another hard-fought tussle, with Nelson counting in the first overtime session.

Arnold Gridders To Receive Awards

Capt. Alfred Pollock, Keller Pollock, and Harry and Robert Henninger, brothers, are among the 16 members of the Arnold Prep School football team who will be awarded letters at the annual football banquet this evening in the Arnold School gymnasium on Braddock avenue.

President R. E. Withers, of the board of trustees; Headmaster Charles W. Wilder, Physical Director Claude H. Hubbard, Coach Paul M. Heverly, Capt. Pollock and other members of the squad will talk informally.

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach.

Tomorrow and Saturday are the two hardest days of the year for anyone who sets out to pick winners. They are days when old traditional games are played, and old traditional games get their chief lure from the fact that they result in upsets as often as not.

Hunk Anderson

It has been my observation that traditional games are the ones which are packin the crowds this year. There are occasional exceptions when two great teams meet in a real stand-out game. But most fans pick out the game they are going to see before the season opens, and wait for it to come along. They may be lured to an unexpected headliner, but they don't like to be rushed into things any more where there is a question of spending money.

Brown's new triple wing-back offense will get a test in the Colgate game tomorrow, but I pick Brown to continue its great march of victories. Colgate is one of the strongest teams in the East, too, and has a chance of winning.

New York University and Carnegie Tech meet in one of the East's headliners. I thing N. Y. U. will take Carnegie because the Tech defense is week this year.

Saturday we play the Army team which gave Harvard the worst licking it has ever had on its own field, 48 to 0. The old idea of Notre Dame shock troops has been transplanted to Army, and I wouldn't be surprised if they use three full teams to beat us. I hope we win and I'm going to tell the players about all those other games we won from Army when we were the underdogs, but it looks hopeless.

Army has power, speed, weight, versatility, fight and plenty of manpower. All we have shown so far is fight on defense. Our offense hasn't clicked since the third game of the season, with Carnegie Tech. Blocking is poor, tackling has improved a little, but is still ragged. Our running attack is slow, and our passes have not clicked satisfactorily in any game.

Pitt will continue its staggering victory march with a victory over Stanford.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

When the hunters return from the fields and woods at sundown on Thanksgiving Day, the small game hunting season in Pennsylvania will be about ended. The legal closing day is November 30, but very few hunters will be in the open after the holiday. It has been an active season; plenty of small game was killed during the early days of this month. In the opinion of observing sportsmen, the counties in Western Pennsylvania was hunted hard and, some say, shot out during the first week of the month.

KILL IS HEAVY

When the game commission makes its total estimate the count will be large. Certainly several million rabbits were killed and the total of ringneck pheasants was heavy, large in spite of the limited 12-day shooting period. A number of hunters who were in the northern border counties and also the mountain counties, where grouse make their habitation, reported they enjoyed plenty of shooting and saw lots of birds. Of course, with a two-bird-per-day limit, many of the day's hunts were short. However, it was gratifying to learn that grouse are not decreasing, but seem to be holding up in the campaign to conserve them.

Pennsylvania may never have the grouse shooting conditions it formerly enjoyed, especially the famous shooting season of 1915. The state game solons have mastered the propagation of deer, rabbits, ringneck pheasants and, to some extent, quail. Grouse, however, do not respond to the game propagation redemies. With plenty of game refugees, auxiliary preserves and state-owned public shooting grounds, some grouse hunting is assured for the future.

PHEASANTS PLENTIFUL

The ringneck pheasant cannot be compared with the grouse as a shooting bird, but, nevertheless, it is increasing its patrons. The ringneck provided a lot of hunting and pleasure for the sportsmen this month. It can be hatched and reared by the thousands, so the lovers of the wing-shooting sport are assured of having it as a target and game.

Bid Adieu to Gridiron

LARRY (RED) SULLIVAN . . . QUARTERBACK OF DUKES

A. A. U. PARLEY HERE IN '33

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Pittsburgh was selected as the 1933 convention city of the Amateur Athletic Union at the closing session of the forty-fourth annual convention here yesterday.

The metric system of measurement for all track and field events was adopted, all "special" bouts in amateur boxing tourneys were ruled out, and an attempt to raise Olympic funds by an Olympic tax on admissions was abandoned.

The change to the metric system, the standard in European competition, came as a distinct surprise for the question, a matter of argument for a number of years, was not on the convention program. This move obviously was aimed to bringing about a universal system of measurement for track and field events and, as a direct result, universal records.

The change will be effective January 1 so that virtually all of the coming indoor season's meets will be run in accordance with metric measurements.

The change applies only to track and field, not to swimming or other sports.

The delegates passed a resolution approving the "Kirby camera timer," an electric timing device perfected by Gustavus T. Kirby, former A. A. U. president. The timer was used unofficially at the Olympic games at Los Angeles.

CAPT. PAUL ABELE

Along with Ben Pawlina, the halfback, who has a broken leg, Sullivan will be unable to play in what would have been the final game of their varsity careers, against Geneva College at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon. Sullivan is suffering from facial bruises received in the Catholic University game at Washington last week. Capt. Abele, an end; Chacko, Frawley, Sepsi, De Carbo, Donohoe and Venneri will be in action for the last time for the Dukes. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

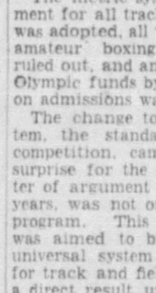
Harpster Predicts Team's Defeat by Duquesne

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928.

The only football game in the Pittsburgh district tomorrow is the annual encounter between Duquesne and Geneva, which takes place at Forbes Field. So far as being a series of long standing and one in which there is much rivalry and hard play, the Duquesne-Geneva battles are second to none in this district, and won't even take a back seat to the rivalry between Pitt and Tech.

Up to the time Elmar Layden came to Duquesne as coach, Geneva had won every game in the series. During Layden's first season, Geneva won, but the Dukes came back in 1929 to win the first night game ever played in Pittsburgh. The following year, Geneva won at Beaver Falls, 7 to 0, and, last year, the Dukes returned the compliment with a 13-to-7 victory at Forbes Field.



H. Harpster

In tomorrow's game, the Dukes are prohibitive favorites, and, although in the years gone by the Covenanters always have been a real match for the boys on the Bluff, the best we can expect tomorrow is for our team to stick in the game, fighting to the end in an attempt to hold down the score.

DUKES HAVE BIG LINE

Geneva does not have the big, rugged line nor the fast, hard-running backs which grace the Duquesne squad, and, when it comes to substitutes, we go through every game with our fingers crossed hoping no one gets hurt.

Many people likely will accuse me of crying the blues and will believe I am fixing it up for myself to take a moral victory. Believe what you will, but it always has been my policy to be honest in my opinions and impartial in my statements, and just because the situation happens to concern the Geneva team is no reason for not continuing to be frank.

We fully expect to give the Dukes a good run for their money and our team will fight hard to make the game interesting, but it is hardly fair to expect our 174-pound line to hold a team that made 16 first downs against W. & J. Many people wondered at the so-called "fluke" victory which West Virginia Wesleyan scored over the Dukes in the middle of the season, but last Saturday this same Wesleyan team held the strong Army eleven to a 7-to-0 score.

TEAMS COMPARED

I have seen the Dukes play four opponents, and believe this without doubt is Layden's greatest team. To prove my regard for the Dukes' ability, I made the statement in my article of Friday, October 7, concerning the game between Pitt and Duquesne the following day, that if Pitt beat the Dukes by three touchdowns, I would take Pitt in every one of its remaining games, knowing that West Virginia, Army, Pennsylvania, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Carnegie Tech and Stanford were to be played. Pitt beat the Dukes by five touchdowns (it should have been only four) and still is undefeated.

The Geneva team has won seven out of nine games played this season, having lost to Carnegie Tech and Waynesburg.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Los Angeles: Baby Arizmendi and Vidal Mulling drew, 10 rounds; Billy Krieger defeated Sid Grigri, 4 rounds; Chalky Wright defeated Al Greenfield, 4 rounds.

These men, according to the mature and well-considered judgment of a jury of 17 observers who covered the nation from seaboard to frontier, deserve the greatest honor within the gift of football for the season of 1932, namely, a place on the all-America team.

It is the official team of the International News Service, selected only after months of painstaking effort and, in the end, considerable debate in the case of a few controversial choices, but today it is ready for official presentation, with the agreement general that only the very finest in the land have qualified.

HELLER OUTSTANDING

Every man is a recognized star. Some of them, beyond all question, rank with the great names of the generation. Moss, of Purdue, was almost a unanimous choice for end. He received, in all, 10 votes for first team honors and a scattering play among second and third team choices to poll the highest award of all. Newman, of Michigan, received 9 votes for quarterback on the first team, ranking second to Moss in this respect. Kurth, of Notre Dame and Smith, of Southern California, were absolute stand-out choices at the tackles, as were Summerfelt, of the Army, among the guards and Bernard, of Michigan, among the centers.

At that, Gracey, of Vanderbilt, carried rather robust support all along the line, but finally had to yield to Bernard. So did Corbus, the Stanford guard, to Rosenberg, of Southern California, the latter's total vote for all teams managing to carry the day.

As for the backfield, Newman and Heller were well out in front, leaving Zimmerman, Tulane; Montgomery, Columbia; Murff, Centenary; Griffith, Southern California; Cain, Alabama; Hitchcock, Auburn, and Brovelli, St. Mary's in a seven-man fight for the last two places.

These went to Hitchcock and Brovelli, the latter barely getting home ahead of Cain and Melinkovich because of his stronger vote for first-team honors over Cain and a stronger vote for second-team honors over Melinkovich. Hitchcock got in by tying Brovelli's first team vote, three, and polling three for the second team and two for the third. In much the same way, Zimmerman drove Beatty Feathers, of Tennessee, all the way back to the third team.

MID-WEST LEADS

The shuffling around of these all-star backs and the selection of Bernard over Gracey at center left the South in a minor position in the matter of first-team choices for the first time in years. The Middle West predominated with four places on the first team; the West Coast and the East having three each and the South one. For the first time in some years, too, the Big Six Conference, notably Nebraska, did not vouchsafe a serious candidate nor did the Southwest, with the possible exception of Hilliard, Texas; Murff, Centenary, and Pruitt, Texas Christian.

As for the Rocky Mountain district, its star back, Christenson, Utah, received only a scattering play from the committee, as did Krueger, of Marquette, and Wilder, of Columbia, for center.

The following members of the committee aided in the selections: Al Santoro, Oakland, Cal., Post-Enquirer; Sid Ziff, Los Angeles Herald Express; Kirk Miller, Washington, D. C., Times; Ed Danforth, Atlanta Georgian; Ed Geiger, Chicago American; Warren W. Brown, Chicago Herald-Examiner; W. W. Wingate, Baltimore News; Ray Helgeson, Boston American; Bud Shaver, Detroit Times; Joseph Mahar, Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union; Ed Frayne, New York American; Bill Farnsworth, New York Journal; Dan Parker, New York Mirror; Harry Keck, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph; Harold Sherwitz, San Antonio Light; Ray R. Brougham, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, and Howard Purser, Wisconsin News, Milwaukee, Wis.

INDIANS DUE TONIGHT

tough for me. There is Don Colvin, left wing, 184 pounds, 6 feet 3 inches. Then there's Bill Doub, the other terminal, 184 pounds again and 6 feet 1 inch. The tackles are six-footers, so are the guards and the center, Bill Bates, misses the mark by an inch, but then, a guy 5 foot 11 inches isn't exactly a dwarf. He can get the jam off the cupboard shelf without calling for a chair.

This war correspondent figures that one or the other is going to take a pasting Saturday. There is too much potential strength pent up within the confines of the two elevens to permit much hoarding of points. It's the finale for both, and they'll shoot the old works . . . and when Warner and Sutherland prepare to shoot they use machine guns and not cap pistols.

CARD COMPLETE FOR BATTLES AT ARENA

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Gorilla Jones vs. Jackie Purvis, 10 rounds, Akron.

Maxie Rosenbloom vs. Tony Poloni (non-title), 10 rounds, Sacramento, Cal.

The card has been completed for the weekly boxing show in the North Side Arena, Friday night, and announcement made that there will be no show in Motor Square Garden next Monday night. The sports show is on in the East End auditorium this week and the management will not be able to get the place set up for boxing in time after it moves out.

The signing of Jerry Clements, Jeannette lightweight, to box Johnny Durso, of Oakland, in the opening bout completed the Arena program, which features Tony Herrera, of Chicago, against Johnny Hayes, of Philadelphia, and Joe Marcus, of Braddock, against Jackie Willis, of Philadelphia, in two 10-round battles. Eddie Zivic, of Lawrenceville, boxes Steve Senich, of Homestead, in the second number.

Between Rounds

Andy Vusky is managing Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O., and wants to show him here against any of the 135-pounders. O'Malley, a former local favorite, has not shown in Pittsburgh for several years.

Pee Wee Jarrell wants a return bout with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, whom he was giving a boxing lesson before being knocked out with a single punch in the eighth round of their bout at the Garden last Monday night. He also would like a fling against Ted Yarosz, who is on the shelf temporarily nursing a sore right hand.

Sacramento, Cal., gets its first peek at a world boxing champion since Benny Leonard boxed there in 1918 when Maxie Rosenbloom meets Tony Poloni in a non-title match tonight.

Johnny Hayes comes here for his battle with Tony Herrera fifth as result of having boxed Vince Dundee, Billy Petrolle, King Tut, Eddie Rau, Billy Wallace, Manuel Quintero, Jackie Brady, Johnny Ketchel, Jimmy Smith and Ted Yarosz, among others. He gave away a lot of weight and lost to Yarosz on a technical knockout at Hickey Park last summer, but had the satisfaction of flooring Teddy, and came back to knock out Marty Gornick, in a bout in the Meyers Bowl.

VETS TO MEET POP WARNER

The Varsity Letter Club of the University of Pittsburgh will have a delegation on hand tonight at the Pennsylvania Station when Pop Warner and his Stanford University football team arrive for the game with Pitt on Saturday. Dr. Homer Roe, president of the Varsity Letter Club; Floyd Rose, toastmaster for the Sutherland-Warner dinner to be given at the Hotel Schenley, Friday evening, November 25, and Allan K. Collingwood, chairman of the executive committee, will head the Pitt delegation.

More than 200 acceptances have been received for the dinner to be given in honor of Coaches Sutherland and Warner. The executive committee announced today that on account of the national broadcast to be given by Coach Warner in connection with the All-America Board hookup at 9 p. m., it will be necessary to start the dinner at the Hotel Schenley promptly at 6 p. m.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—Joseph Russo, Newell youth, reached the bowlers' hall of fame yesterday by rolling a perfect duckpin score on the Newell Y. M. C. A. alleys. He chalked up 12 strikes and then added eight more before missing.

Card End

DON COLVIN

Regular left end of the Stanford University eleven, which arrives tonight to battle Pitt at the Stadium on Saturday. He is a star pass catcher.

POP WARNER . . . CONTEST IS OVERWHELMING

Warner, Stanford University coach, has a tough job ahead of him when he arrives here tonight with his Stanford University Cardinals, of California, to play Pitt at the Stadium Saturday. He'll have to pick 16 winners out of thousands of entries in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's question contest, conducted in conjunction with the All-America Board of Football and Postum Football Show radio broadcast.

GRID CONTEST AT AN END

Well, it's all over but the shouting—the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-All-America Board of Football-Postum-Pop Warner question contest for 16 prizes in the form of 10 sets of two tickets each for the Pitt-Stanford game at the Stadium, Saturday, and six beautiful all-America football blankets. The final gun cracked last midnight.

The winners will be selected by Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, Stanford football coach and former Pitt mentor, who arrives here tonight with his Coast stars to battle Pitt at the Stadium on Saturday.

BIG JOB FOR POP

And what a task faces the grizzled warrior of full many a gridiron tussle in four decades of coaching! Thousands of letters, telegrams and notes have been delivered to the sports editor's desk for Pop's perusal. In the last-minute rush, special deliveries and telegrams were the rule.

Christy Walsh, originator of the All-America Board of Football, will arrive tomorrow morning to assist Warner in the task and they will have the winners selected in time to be announced in all editions of Friday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Tickets will be rushed to the winners by special delivery registered letters, and the winners of the blankets will be asked to call at the Sun-Telegraph for their prizes.

ANSWERS OVER RADIO

The selected questions will be answered by Warner during the weekly All-America Board-Postum Football Show over a national radio hookup through WJAS Friday night. All football fans are invited to listen in to one of the most interesting football broadcasts ever devised.

Many of the questions submitted have been duplicated. As announced during the course of the contest, the letter selected by Warner on any subject will be the winner. There are no duplicate prizes. Among the contestants are many high school and college coaches and players and former players, many of them bearing names familiar in the headlines of the present and past.

NEXT—THE WINNERS

It's all over now. What a contest! Sit tight and watch for the announcement of the winners Friday and then listen in on Pop's big broadcast.

Negro Grid Teams Play Here Tomorrow

The Wilberforce and West Virginia State College football teams will clash in their fifteenth meeting at Greenlee Field tomorrow. The two Negro schools inaugurated their series in 1917 and have met every year since, with the exception of 1918. Wilberforce has won three games, tied three and lost eight.

Wilberforce has won three of its five games to date and has tied two. West Virginia has won two, lost two and tied one. Last year, Wilberforce won by a 12-to-6 score.

A crowd of 5,000 is expected for the tussle.

Pitt and Dukes' Games Topic of Seals Tonight

Duquesne vs. Geneva.
And Pitt vs. Stanford.

Tune in on the last-minute information about these closing college football games of the local season during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

John Holohan

John D. Holohan, graduate athletic manager of the Dukes, will tell you about tomorrow's finale at Forbes Field.

Don E. Liebendorfer, assistant graduate athletic manager of Stanford University, will tell you about the Cardinals' battle with Pitt, upon the outcome of which hinges Pitt's chances of playing in the Tournament of Roses classic on New Year's Day.

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will interview Holohan and Liebendorfer, with Miss Marian Salmon, pianist, and Herb McGee also participating in the program.

RAMBLERS LOSE FIVE STARS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Secret football practice sessions came to an end, at least temporarily, yesterday at Notre Dame when more than 500 students pushed a gate off its hinges, marched in and watched the squad scrimmage in preparation for the Army battle Saturday.

What they saw was not encouraging, for George Melinkovich, regular fullback, and Jim Harris, first-string guard, were not in uniform and probably will not play Saturday. Both were in the infirmary, suffering with mild attacks of influenza. Tom (Kitty) Gorman, regular center, suffered an injury to his side, and also may not be in shape to face the West Pointers.

At the same time it was indicated that Ray Brancheau, starting halfback, and Dick Pfefferle, second team tackle, would not be sufficiently recovered from injuries suffered in the Navy game, to see action this week.

SCHOOL TEAMS END SEASON TOMORROW

By JULIUS LEVIN

The curtain on the regular football season of the W. P. I. A. L. will be lowered with appropriate ceremonies tomorrow when the contenders for the class AA and class A championships wind up their campaigns in a flock of Thanksgiving Day battles.

Featuring the attractive Turkey Day menu are four Class AA Conference contests, two of which will have decided bearing on the outcome of the title race.

JEANNETTE IN TEST

Jeannette High, coached by Markley Barnes, and New Castle directed by Phil Bridenbaugh, risk their hopes for the Conference title on the results of their games against powerful opponents tomorrow afternoon.

Greensburg is the only barrier that remains before Jeannette and one of the most successful football campaigns in the history of the school. Jeannette has played four Conference contests so far this season and the Barnes' charges have won all without allowing the opposition to score. In stacking up against Greensburg, Jeannette is meeting another undefeated eleven, although it has been tied by Wilkinsburg.

New Castle is expected to win from Turtle Creeek Union at New Castle, thus giving the Lawrence County eleven its fourth Conference victory. If New Castle and Jeannette both triumph, the W. P. I. A. L. football committee likely will order a post-season game to determine the Conference championship.

MONESSEN AT CHARLEROI

Monessen meets an old rival in Charleroi, while Clairton and McKeesport, likewise ancient antagonists, battle at McKeesport in other Conference engagements.

The program in the class A division is headed by the battle between Beaver Falls and New Brighton at Beaver Falls. Beaver Falls is making a determined bid for the championship of this group and needs a victory tomorrow to clinch the right to be ranked among the leading contenders.

A battle between neighboring rivals also is scheduled at Edgewood tomorrow morning when Edgewood, coached by Wally Pickett, and Swissvale, coached by Ed Paulie, renew gridiron acquaintances.

This contest is regarded by both schools as their feature attraction of the season and annually serves to sharpen the appetites of the followers of the two schools for their evening repast. Both teams are pointed for the struggle, which promises to be a close one from start to finish.

Two games are offered the W. P. I. A. L. followers this afternoon. Down in the Beaver valley, Monaca is the attraction at Midland, while up the Monongahela valley Bellevernon and Fayette City lock horns. Both games were scheduled last Saturday, but were postponed because of inclement weather.

AMBRIDGE WINS

Ambridge High School drove the clinching spike into its claim for the Class A. W. P. I. A. L. football championship yesterday afternoon at Ambridge, defeating Ellwood City High, 25 to 7, in the final contest on the schedule.

The victory gave the Bridgers, coached by Moe Rubenstein, a clean record for the season and on the point system of title figuring employed by the W. P. I. A. L., an apparently safe lead over their closest rival, Beaver Falls, which has a tough game with New Brighton on for tomorrow.

Joe Perricella, Ambridge halfback, was the star of the game, scoring three touchdowns. Ellwood City scored on an aerial attack in the final period.

While Ambridge was taking Ellwood City, Stowe Township was annexing its initial victory over McKees Rocks, winning, 18 to 6, at Stowe.

The victors scored in the first, third and fourth periods, with McKees Rocks counting in the last quarter.

Forbes

Erskine Now Expects Big Motor Gains

—By B. C. FORBES—

AFTER REMAINING noncommittal for two years, A. R. Erskine, head of Studebaker and Pierce-Arrow, confides to me:

"Things have begun to creep up and I look for a 50 per cent increase in the motor industry next year."

Good news is peculiarly welcome these days, is it not?

SO DRASTICALLY have expenses been cut by most organizations that they will be able to earn profit as soon as business attains moderate recovery.

Mr. Forbes

A return to 50 per cent of 1929 sales would mean real prosperity for most industries and most enterprises.

The popular expectation is that revival will be halting, irregular, half-hearted for months. Perhaps. Probably. Yet there is a possibility that scarcity of supplies will be suddenly discovered in at least some lines and that a sharp, though short, boom will be experienced.

I reason that there will be very marked expansion in instalment buying once re-employment gets vigorously under way. Half the families in the land want and actually need things which they have long denied themselves either because of depleted finances or because of apprehension concerning the future. A change in sentiment could very easily precipitate a deluge of orders.

EX-GOV. KARRINGTON, of Hawaii, in a letter to this writer, after remarking that "here in Honolulu bread perfectly good for human consumption is being fed to pigs, yet welfare workers everywhere tell us that more money is needed to feed hungry families," comments:

"It is strange that we have great organizations able to supplant the ancient candle with glass lamps and kerosene oil in the interior of China, but we cannot fin' the organizing ability among all our brilliant minds to distribute the waste products so that waste food will finally land in the mouths of waste humanity."

After mentioning that "I follow your call upon your fellow citizens to shoy what sort of stuff they are made of," he suggests the organization of a powerful pool or pools to get waste wheat and other surplus commodities into the hands and mouths of the needy and hungry. He cites this example:

"Not so long ago the Hawaiian pineapple canners were spending money burning waste products that were a rotting, smelling health menace. Then someone studied the problem. Result: Waste juice turned to sugar and ascetic acid, waste fiber turned to bran for cattle. A health menace removed.

"Surely there is a field for community waste products companies."

It assuredly is tragic, that over-abundance should spell depression and privation.

REGARDLESS OF any President or President-elect, the people won't stand for cancellation. They are very much from Missouri in regard even to conciliation.

AVIATION MEET POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—The scheduled meeting of the Aviation Corporation was postponed indefinitely yesterday through the inability of certain directors living in other parts of the country to attend.

Lamotte T. Cohu, president, in revealing the postponement, declined to state which directors were unable to attend. It was understood, however, that E. L. Cord, largest individual stockholder and chairman, of Auburn, was not on hand.

The meeting was to reduce the directorate to 15 members from 35 currently and elect a new board.

Plan to Reorganize Kelsey-Hayes Wheel

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A plan for reorganization of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Corporation, which owes approximately $11,000,000, has been submitted to stockholders by G. W. Kennedy, president.

Kennedy said that under the proposal, creditors would receive approximately $5,500,000 in bonds and the balance in stock. He said that the plan had already been approved by the company's creditors and a substantial proportion of the stockholders.

Under the plan, a new company is to be formed to acquire the assets of the Kelsey-Hayes organization.

STOCK MARKET PRICES SLIDE LOWER

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The stock market slid downward today, following two weeks of listless activity in a narrow trading range.

Losses ranged from about 1 to 3 points. The rails offered early resistance, but in afternoon trading joined the descent.

A handful of stocks showed stubbornness, like General Motors, Baltimore and Ohio, Eastman and General Electric, but in afternoon trading they, too, were forced to give ground, yielding small fractions to around a point.

The fairly sharp comeback of carloadings last week, compared with the previous week, which included the election holiday, was favorably regarded, although a fairly substantial improvement had been expected. New York Central handled 90,697 cars, against 82,788 the week before. Last week's loadings were 10.5 per cent under the corresponding 1931 week, against 20.5 the week before.

Other roads to report were Pennsylvania with 83,595, against 80,646; St. Paul, 23,326, against 20,703; Chicago and Northwestern, 19,873, against 18,313; Missouri Pacific, 21,129, against 20,273; St. Louis, San Francisco, 12,702, against 12,580; M. K. T., 7,748, against 7,753, and the St. Louis Terminal, which reported an interchange from 28 connecting roads of 27,423 cars, against 23,838 the previous week.

The commodities, like stocks, showed listlessness. Wheat drifted lower, being off ¾ to ⅞ cent a bushel at midday. Demand for copper and other metals was quiet, although prices remained steady. The Iron Age composite price of heavy melting steel scrap sagged to $7.37 a gross ton, which was still 95 cents above the year's low.

P.R.R., CENTRAL LOADINGS UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Car loadings of the New York Central Lines for the week ended November 19 made a sharp recovery following their dip in the preceding week, which included the election holiday.

Total loadings for last week were reported today at 90,697 cars, against 82,788 the week before and 101,265 in the corresponding 1931 week. Last week's traffic was 10.5 per cent below the corresponding 1931 level, against a decline of 20.5 per cent the week before.

Cars handled by the Pennsylvania system last week amounted to 83,595. This compared with 80,646 the week before and 101,047 in the corresponding week of 1931. Last week's loadings were 17.3 per cent under the corresponding 1931 figure. The week before, the decrease was 24.6 per cent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company during the week ended November 21 handled 23,328 revenue freight cars, against 20,703 in the preceding week and 26,487 in the like week of 1931.

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company loaded and received from connections 19,873 revenue freight cars, compared to 18,313 in the preceding week and 23,874 in the like week of 1931.

POWER OUTPUT INCREASES

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Electric power production in the United States rose about 11,000,000 kilowatt hours last week to a total of 1,531,584,000, but the percentage decline from a year ago was 7.5 compared with 6.3 in each of the two previous weeks. In 1931 output showed a sharp gain in the corresponding week. The statistics are compiled by the National Electric Light Association.

The Atlantic seaboard's output last week was 7 per cent under 1931 against a drop of 3.2 in the previous week; New England alone was off 7.4 per cent against 1.0 per cent in the week ended Nov. 12. The central industrial region's production was 9.2 per cent below a year ago compared with 8.9 per cent in the previous week, while the Pacific Coast showed a 7.6 per cent decline against 10.9.

Joyce Appeals to Louisa For Consent to Begin Studying Medicine

CHAPTER XXX.

In Washington Square the news of Yvonne's engagement was received variously. Mrs. Sheldon said something about a good match. She'd heard of the Carstairs family. Elizabeth's eyes filled with tears. Both women were thinking—not of Yvonne. They were looking at Joyce, the little, eager face, the cropped dark hair—that had been a struggle!—the oval cheeks, flushed with excitement.

She'll marry. Elizabeth thought wildly, and go away from me and I will never have had her—she'll leave me, a stranger.

Marriage? but she's a child! thought Louisa.

She said, aloud, "I have never approved of early marriages. I was 30 when I married your grandfather."

"But mother—".

"Your mother was 20," Louisa acknowledged, indifferently.

Joyce turned her eyes from her mother's flushing face. She thought, as she had thought a hundred times, each time with the same measure of astonishment . . . only 20—when I'm 18 this fall she won't be 40.

SEES YVONNE

She wondered, not for the first time, and briefly, why her mother had not remarried.

Some days later she spoke to Yvonne.

"You know you said I might tell the family about Reginald?"

"Yet. But please don't call him that."

"Reggie, then?"

"No—good heavens—are you Wodehouse?"

"What do you call him?"

"That's no go, either," said Yvonne, swiftly.

They laughed a little, walking home to Joyce's from the uptown school. It was a long walk in the crisp air, reddening their cheeks, blowing frosty stars into their eyes.

"Well, what about your family?"

"Not much. But they've begun to fuss over me. Mother came into my room the other night, like a little burglar. Nervous, you know, afraid of being caught. She talked to me."

"About what?"

"Oh, love and girls and boys and how one must be very, very careful and something about innocence and youth and not being carried off your feet by something that looked like the real thing and was not."

"More cabbage-stork business?"

"I suppose so. When she left I think—I'm not sure—but I think she was crying."

TWO PROPOSALS

After a minute during which they negotiated a crossing, Joyce said, "I've had two proposals."

"Who?"

"Did you say 'Hugh?' For one was Hugh. It was a letter, very repentant—about the show girl—but I drove him to it, would I forgive and make him—good and happy? He—wallowed, actually. I don't want to make any man good and happy. Can't they be it by themselves?" asked Joyce, incoherently.

"Certainly. Then we don't like them."

"The other—I don't think you know him—I met him this summer, he's from Cleveland. Older, some, and nice. I don't want him. If grandmother and mother knew about all this they'd swoon."

"What do you want?"

Joyce stopped dead in the middle of Fifth avenue to the horror of a traffic policeman who had just blow.. his whistle. Yvonne dragged her from the path of an advancing truck and three careening taxis and they arrived on the other side, breathless, laughing.

"Idiot!"

"Well, you asked me. I wanted to answer. I don't want anything—uncertain. You understand that. And before I want anything like that, marriage I mean—households—children—Yvonne, does that ever occur to you when you're thinking of The Honorable?—I want to discover myself. Work. Know things. Get out and come to grips with Something—heaven knows what."

"Provided you do get out—your grandmother."

"Grandmother?"

"Grips!"

They understood this abridged language perfectly. Joyce shrugged the slim shoulders under the beaver coat.

"Perhaps. Does she think I'm going to sit in that house for another hundred years, with my feet on a footstool and some sewing in my fist, waiting for an entirely suitable young man to walk in, attended by his mother, his cousins and his maiden aunts, to ask for my hand in holy mat?"

"Joyce, you're invaluable! Yes, I imagine that is about the line of her reasoning. However, why don't you ask Miss Cora? She's seen more than one girl struggle out of the family toils in her time and she's done her little bit to help 'em."

EXPLAINS PROBLEM

"Miss Cora," as the girls always called her, was principal of the school Yvonne and Joyce attended. It was a very good school, it really believed in education. It was a school so careful of its reputation that admission to it was not easy. It had been called a snobbish school for years, by those not admitted to it, and it had for its guidance one of the gentlest and wisest of living women.

Miss Cora was alone the day Joyce went in to see her. She heard her pupil out, in smiling silence, her long fingers busy with the tea things, her eyes friendly and intent under the beautiful, white hair.

"So you wanted to study medicine?"

"Awfully—"

"It is not too late—if you're willing to work a great many years. There'd be college first, you know."

"I'd be willing. But they wouldn't let me. I've tried, again and again, ever since I was quite little. Grandmother doesn't approve. She'd never let me go away from home, she's said so."

LIKES STUDIES

Miss Cora knew Louisa Sheldon. Joyce had been entered on the school lists when she was a baby, and when she reached the requisite age Mrs. Sheldon had put Miss Cora through a remarkable cross-examination. Miss Cora smiled, remembering.

"No, I suppose it is out of the question, my dear." She added thoughtfully, "Your best work here has been done in biology and chemistry."

"I love it."

"Now, why—exactly?"

"Oh—finding out—experimenting—seeing things come right—the accuracy of it all, the delicacy, the having to work almost without breathing, keeping your mind fixed, undistracted."

"Barnard offers courses," Miss Cora said, thinking, "in histology, for instance. You'd like that. In the zoological department. There's a biology course that would come first. You'd live at home. There are other subjects open to you, also—you could get a B. S. if you worked for it. You'd have to work, my dear."

"Oh, but I would, Miss Cora!"

"I'll find out for you. You could start with those I have mentioned, see how it works out. You can speak to your grandmother, and I will talk to Mrs. Sheldon, too, if you like." She looked affectionately at the slight, vibrant figure. "We'll have to find a wise outlet for all that energy, Joyce," she said.

With acute misgivings Joyce presented her plan to her grandmother. She garnished it with appeals and served it up on a silver platter of enthusiasm. What if she should say no? Louisa's ultimatums stood. It was worse than useless, Joyce knew, to endeavor to enlist her mother as an ally.

DEBUT PLANNED

Mrs. Sheldon heard her granddaughter out, in an unbetraying silence. She then remarked, "I had planned your debut for the autumn following your graduation."

"But I don't want to come out," Joyce cried. "I'd hate it—teas and people and smirks and smiles and all the rest of it. I want to do something really worth while."

"And you feel these courses would be worth while?" asked Louisa. She was extremely hazy on the subjects in which Joyce took so unusual an interest.

"Yes. I'm so awfully keen, Granny——"

Louisa considered. After all, it was not such an impossible solution. Twenty years ago a debut was a dignified affair. A girl made her little, beruffled bow to an ordered society and then waited for some solid citizen to come along and marry her. After which, she had children. It was unfortunate that Nature argued from cause to effect, but a wise woman overlooked that fact.

Nowadays things were altered, mused Louisa, sitting straight-backed in her chair. She was 74 years old and did not look within 10 years of her age, although her dark hair was steel gray. Yes, society had certainly changed for the worse, and Joyce was popular. Should she make her debut and set her feet upon the dangerous paths of modern youth, it was quite on the cards that she would marry early—more than possible that she would marry badly. And Joyce didn't have to marry.

It never occurred to Mrs. Sheldon that Joyce might some day wish to make use of her acquired knowledge. She looked upon the girl's impetus toward learning as another manifestation of the necessity which had set the girls of her own time to tinkling prettily upon the piano or to spending long hours embroidering handsome alter cloths or painting pansies in oils, a necessity which must find a time filler, an "interest," a cultural gesture. In later years girls had burnt wood and studied nature.

"I will think it over," she said finally, "and talk with Miss Leigh."

Miss Leigh was Miss Cora. Joyce sprang up and flung strong arms about her grandmother. She knew that the battle was won, and bloodlessly. Otherwise she would have heard a "Certainly not!" in the tone of finality Joyce knew very well.

She told her mother later, quite casually. Elizabeth tried to be intelligent about the business and only succeeded in boring her child . . . She's trying to escape us—from the whole atmosphere of the house, Elizabeth thought. Further than that she did not go. She was glad, even happy in her subdued way, that there should be any sort of escape for Joyce, however makeshift it seemed to Joyce's mother. For herself there had never been any. She thought of herself now as an old woman, older than Louisa. Only occasionally, when she saw Fred Van Alstyne's name in the cable news, did she look back and remember a moment which had seemed like youth.

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon has lorded it over her daughter-in-law, Elizabeth, even before the death of the latter's husband, Lennox. Pneumonia killed Lennox a few days after he was married. Louisa and Elizabeth went abroad, where a girl, Joyce, was born. They return to New York City. Ten years pass. Elizabeth never thought of remarriage until induced to attend social affairs with Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her deceased husband. Fred proposes marriage, she accepts, and tells Mrs. Sheldon. The latter startles Elizabeth by asking her if she intends "telling" Fred all details of her romance with Lennox. Elizabeth writes Fred, breaking off their engagement. She persistently refuses to see him. Joyce begins to tire of her grandmother's constant vigilance. Louisa disapproves of public dances, so Joyce attends them secretly.

Now Go On

"So you want to study medicine?" asked Miss Cora.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Josh Dreano, popular master of ceremonies at the Arsenal Theater, where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club holds its regular weekly meetings, again presented another sparkling stage show.

The show opened with Thomas Kelly doing a fast and snappy tap dance which the members all liked. They all thought that when he disappeared into the wings that he had completed his act, but such was not the case. While Josh was making a few "wise cracks," Thomas was equipping his educated feet with a pair of roller skates, and as he skated out to the center of the stage the youngsters set up quite a shout. Thomas then proceeded to show the youngsters how, with constant practice, it is just as easy to tap dance on a pair of roller skates as in a pair of soft shoes.

HEAR "ZITHER MAN"

Then came the "zither" man. How many of you youngsters know what a zither is? It's a stringed musical instrument, consisting of a sounding box and 28 or 31 strings. Well, the "zither man" Saturday was none other than John Halloran, who played several Irish melodies which went over in a big way with the members.

Next Betty Richards, who is also the grand jester, and the Fundi sisters, Alberta and Minnie, sang several songs in harmony and finished their part of the entertainment with a clever dance called "The Dance of the Winds."

As the time for the regular program was near the show was closed by Arthur Belmont, the "Human Seal," who was playing a return engagement by popular demand. Again Mr. Belmont made just as big a hit with the youngsters as he had at the meeting a week previous.

Part of the pledge that every member recites each week at the meetings reads: "I will do my BEST to spread Good Cheer."

GIVE BENEFIT

The members of the Arsenal Chapter have many times lived up to this pledge. They have appeared at the Marine Hospital where they have put on sketches for the war veterans who are unable to get out, have held entertainments of various kinds at different homes for different purposes.

Last Sunday several of them appeared at the Moose Home and they gave a benefit performance for the needy families of their section. Those taking part were:

John Hilliard, blackface comedian.

Russel Niggl, blackface comedian.

Betty Richards, songs.

Grace McCoy, songs.

Josephine Lang, song and dance.

Josephine Barran, songs.

Eleanor Johnson, song and dance.

The benefit performance was under the direction of Russell Niggl, assistant manager of the theater, and Mrs. Irene Richards, mother of the present grand jester.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

It Ain't the Money

We really should have explained our bridge rules yesterday by explaining they were elastic. After all, contract is a game of skill or its substitutes.

It is a very amusing sport if your partner will only get into the spirit of the play. Just because you are set for a few thousand points is no reason why your eyebrows should push your hat off.

Let's take the average bridgester. He's a man who has worked hard all day and wants a little relaxation. Even if you are clumsy they can't shoot you for shuffling.

What is more comfy and tootsy than to draw four chairs around a table on a winter evening and start guessing from left to right?

We'll concede one point. So far as the actual playing of cards is concerned you don't need a square table. In fact, the other guys get all the bids and you and your partner might as well be sitting at the north and south poles of an old-fashioned ironing board.

That's the strategic tussle about contract. Trying to take the bid away from a couple who are getting roundshouldered from holding kings, aces and queens. You certainly meet the stubbornest kind of people when you haven't brought your bow and arrow along.

They say that cards will average when you figure 'em by the full derby route. That is, if four people play for a hundred years they will all finish even. That may be so. But we like our examples easier to prove.

A man likes to win the night he is playing. It may not be the money alone. It may be vanity or some other handy thing. All we know is that we like to prove that we have more brains than the other mug and a deck of cards is just as good a weapon as any.

That's why we get sore when we lose. It ain't the money, as we said before. We always have to say that three times before it sounds convincing. It's the feeling that we are being made boobs by the opponents. If there is anything we hate it is a laughing winner.

Nobody hates handing over a few dimes and watching the other turnip stack them away in his pocket. But how we could strangle him when he jumps up and down so we can hear them jingle.

That's why we repeat it ain't the money. It's the humidity.

THE LAST GAVOTTE

Here, ladies and gents, is a picture that speaks volumes—and teaches a lesson, too. This picture is a rebuke to the poor who envy the rich. The rich are not happy, and if you do not believe it, get your eyes examined. See how the little woman turns away from the big Investment Trust man. Study the expression on her face. She knows that the dope is dancing in a fools' paradise, because in less than 90 days the 1932 income tax blanks will be mailed. And after he has glanced over the new schedules he will go dancing in the streets—with a tin cup and a hat full of lead pencils.

Men seldom give a single thought to Gals who do just what they ought to.

And to hear theater men tell it, there are only two kinds of movie houses—those that are dark and those in the red.

And Moronia says she knows a guy so generous he would lend you his ear at only 3 per cent.

LOGIC 1-A

"It would be splendid if the world should seriously attempt to overproduce everything that everybody needs."—Henry Ford.

* * *

There was a young man whose deduction
Rose high above sneers and obstruction,
"Try to overproduce," Said he, "try like the duce,
And that will end overproduction." Awk.

Do your duty, sheriff.

Green's Opposition To Federal Sales Tax Is Hurtful to Labor

Economic law is inexorable, and it ultimately asserts itself irrespective of political interference.

The truth of this assertion is revealed by recent American tax experience.

Threatened with a continued deficit, Congress, under the leadership of the Democratic House Ways and Means Committee, was wisely urged at the last session to turn to new and additional sources of public revenues, including a moderate, widely diffused manufacturers' sales tax.

It seemed for a time that the country was to get great stimulus from a wise and firm handling of the fiscal problems of the federal government.

But at the psychological moment, an emotional band of Congressmen of the know-nothing school, led by Representative La Guardia, of New York, who has just been punished at the polls, revolted against the soundly conceived program.

Ignoring economic realities, these revolters, fighting under the slogan, "Soak the rich," upset the tax program. The result was an unsatisfactory compromise—a hodge podge tax measure.

Instead of a general sales tax spread thin, Congress foolishly authorized selected sales taxes on unfavored commodities spread thick. Already Treasury reports indicate that the revenues from such substitute taxes have proven grossly inadequate and have fallen far short of estimates.

The other futile method adopted for overcoming a deficit in revenues consisted of the procedure of raising the rates on hypothetical, non-existent incomes. The only practical effect of such a gesture was to add to the forces making for continuing depression by further penalizing initiative and enterprise, which are so sorely needed to get job creating projects under way.

The ill conceived tax bill was rushed through Congress on the false pretext that it was favorable to the "poor."

But experience has shown that the invisible dole of tax exemption is worthless to 10,000,000 unemployed persons who are without incomes.

The truth is that the poor especially suffer in times of national economic adversity, and that they are benefited most by economic legislation which is helpful to productive enterprise and which promotes opportunities for employment.

As these facts have impressed themselves on widening groups, the stage has been set for tax reforms at the short session of Congress in December.

The well informed are hopeful that Congress will augment public revenues through the comparatively painless routes of a beer tax and a widely diffused manufacturers' sales tax.

In the circumstances, it is to be regretted that William Green, on behalf of the American Federation of Labor, expressed academic opposition to the sales tax, which has become a fiscal necessity.

We usually find ourselves in agreement with Mr. Green on economic questions, but think that in this case he has failed to distinguish between illusion and reality.

It is an illusion to assume that the incidence of corporate and income taxes fall only on the rich.

In the last analysis, all taxes, whatever their form, tend to be shifted to the backs of the great multitudes of self-supporting citizens. Corporation taxes tend to be considered part of the cost of production, and are in the last analysis absorbed in price.

The sales tax, which has succeeded admirably in Canada and in the Philippines, is especially useful in time of adversity. It is productive because it is based on business transactions, which in hard times are more stable than business profits, which tend to vanish and elude the tax collector.

To the extent that wise and painless taxation promotes credit and stimulates business enterprise, labor has much to gain.

The working men of the country have already observed that the La Guardia type of "soak the rich" taxation puts no bread in anyone's mouth.

The jobless and the impecunious will be untouched by the sales tax or any other tax.

What they really want, however, is not further tax exemption, which is meaningless, but a sound tax system which will promote prosperity and enable them to be reabsorbed in gainful employment.

It would be lamentable if organized labor stubbornly adhered to fallacious tax doctrines, which might seriously delay the economic processes making for recovery and renewed employment opportunities.

The Narcotic Situation

The High Price Charged for Unlawful Drugs in the Underworld Indicates Vigorous Enforcement.

Zeno Fritz, assistant United States attorney, suggests that a wrong impression may have been created by the statement in these columns that of the 232 persons indicted in the United States District Court last week "not a few" are charged with violations of the narcotic laws.

The indictments charging violations of the narcotic laws which were returned by the grand jury were as follows: One charging a defendant with forging prescriptions calling for narcotics, four charging possession and concealment of narcotics in violation of the Harrison and Jones-Miller acts, two charging sales of narcotics, one charging two defendants with manufacture of smoking opium, and one charging three defendants with interstate shipment of narcotics.

The Sun-Telegraph is forced by this record to adhere to the belief that the local traffic in illegal narcotics constitutes a serious situation.

Yet we are willing to concede, as we did in the article which prompted Mr. Fritz's comment, that the local authorities are enforcing the law vigorously.

Mr. Fritz informs us that the price now charged for morphine, cocaine and heroin in the underworld is not less than $170 for a cut ounce. Four years ago these same narcotics sold for prices ranging between $65 and $85 a cut ounce. The price of smoking opium has also increased.

The figures tell their own story of difficulty in circumventing the federal narcotic forces.

France, Britain, Belgium and Italy say they cannot, or ought not, meet their December debt payments to Uncle Sam.

All four of these countries belong to the League of Nations. The League of Nations publishes an Armaments Year Book in which the World Peace Foundation tells how much each of the four nations is paying for armaments in acknowledged budget expenditures for this year. So we learn:

The French debt payment due to Uncle Sam on December 15 is $19,261,430. But France is spending $466,960,000 for armaments this year—TWENTY-FOUR TIMES AS MUCH as the December debt payment.

The British debt payment due on December 15 is $95,500,000. Britain's armament expenditures for the year are $465,255,000—NEARLY FIVE TIMES AS MUCH as the debt payment.

Belgium's debt payment due December 15 is $2,125,000. Belgium's armament expense is $33,303,200—MORE THAN FIFTEEN TIMES AS MUCH as the debt payment.

Italy's debt payment due December 15 is $1,245,437. Italy's armament expense for the year is $248,946,500—MORE THAN 199 TIMES AS MUCH as the debt payment due.

If these nations can spend SO MUCH on armaments, why can't they pay Uncle Sam A LITTLE on their just debts?

Marry-Go-Round

Side-Lights on Men

When a man reaches 50 without ever having wanted to marry, it is hard to tell whether his heart is burned out—or just ossified from lack of exercise.

* * *

"Forgiving" is woman's greatest delight. And lots of times she insists on forgiving a man when the only thing on earth he wants is to be forgotten.

* * *

Heaven made marriage a lottery for woman by giving her almost no choice in the matter of a husband: man makes it a lottery for himself by shutting his eyes and snatching blindly at any woman who happens to be nearest at the psychological moment.

A man is not actually beginning to get old until he suddenly discovers that a perfect dinner satisfies the longings of his soul more completely than any woman's kisses.

* * *

A woman says, "I wonder if he loves me!" A man says, "I wonder if I love her." Thus, their minds are perfectly attuned—for they are both wondering about the person they love best in the world! The man!

* * *

Sooner or later, every man would make a fool of himself over some woman if she would only give him time—and not beat him to it.

* * *

If you have to diagnose your emotions, in order to know whether or not you are really in love, then you are NOT. Love is something as unmistakable as hunger, rheumatism or a sprained ankle.

Bridge, like marriage, seems to bring out all the worst in the best man's disposition.

* * *

It's hard to convince a woman that she has married a brilliant, masterful man, after she has watched a salesman high-hat him into buying a car that he can't afford or flatter him into buying a hat that he doesn't like.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Never Kill Faith

Kill anything
On the whole wide earth,
Kill the joy of spring
Or a young child's mirth;
Kill the mounting flame
Of ambition's fire,
Kill love, kill dreams
And the heart's desire.
Kill all of these,
And you deal but death;
But never, never
Kill man's faith!

For when faith is done
He must go bereft,
An empty one
Who has nothing left.
No stars by night,
No sun by day
Belong to him
Whose faith you slay!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Dressmaking salons in the East 50's have had their first surge of activity in two years. Faint, to be sure, but enough to encourage. For months many have not only been peeking from their silken cloisters for trade, but for the sheriff.

Such shops are mostly converted mansions, fancied up with dove-grey walls, black carpets and jade hangings. There are thin brown Russian cigarets with gold tips for Milady. Also gold-cloth couches where prospective customers may sip coffee and watch mannikins.

Many mannikins are former show girls, occupying such posts until the Rialto blizzard abates. At the end of the room curtains part and visions of beauty, swaying slightly with hand on hip, emerge sheated in creations that bedazzle. They are a svelte sisterhood of perfect types.

Swaying in dainty circles up to madame, they give her a half smiling, drooping glance, turn, linger a second, sway again and move off. If madame reaches for a feel of the garment, the mannequin comes to a dead stop. Right here the cutawayed sales lord rushes up to deliver his sales punch.

"A breath of springtime," he may murmur. Or: "Madame would be divine in that!" Being a combination of a business man and a Tory in taste he may say nothing. He knows psychology. If Madame buys he bows her to her car. If she doesn't—pouf! What does it matter? Madame will come again!

In a Tenth avenue hamburger hutch two tough mugs plopped on stools for sandwiches. "Hey!" shouted one, "pin a rose on them!" And the counterman deftly festooned his handiwork with slices of Bermuda onions.

* * *

In the same beanery an arch lady popped in, smudged her cigaret on the scrubbed white counter, and, with overriding vivacity, chirped: "Whose going to stand coffee?" Everyone seemed suddenly intent on inspecting their food. All save a scholarly man reading, who looked up, put down a dime and returned to his page. The lady downed it black at a gulp, rouged her lips, called "Cheerio, old things," and went out into the night.

* * *

Incidentally, the counterman bore the picturesque moniker, "Soapy." He wore a gummy white duck coat, the sleeve of which he constantly used for dehydrating his brow in the inferno of kitchen heat. He seemed a ten-minute-egg in concrete casing. Yet when a trembling old man edged to the counter, coughed apologetically and asked for something, he called out: "Sure, oldtimer, squat yourself and I'll rustle up a snack that's a lulu." And he did—even to a slab of apple pie peaked with a double scoop of ice cream.

* * *

A rejuvenation of vanished gallantry in correspondence, too, arrived this morning from an 80-year-old Cincinnatian whose letter ended in this trembly salute: "Accept sir, the renewed assurance of my high consideration." A drab world sadly needs a salting of such epistolary splendor.

* * *

To familiars, male and female, I wind up letters with that gawky trade mark of schoolboy adolescence, "Love and Kisses"—a finis I filched from that Sir Galahad of the Wabash, Meredith Nicholson. But it has caused me several moments of acute embarrassment. In the pressure of getting off a note haphazardly by hand in London recently I signed myself thus to a caribou-faced solicitor from whom I was making inquiries of a serious nature. I mentioned the faux pas when we met, trying awkwardly to make him see a ha-ha in the slip. But Englishmen—and he was no exception—find it difficult to understand those sheer freaks of absurdity we call the comic spirit. He graciously let go a slight burble of laughter: "O, yaws, I see, ripping, by Jove." But I noticed he closed the interview at tea-time without asking me to have even a stingy old spot.

* * *

And speaking of that many-splendored art—the comic spirit—I went on a motor trip with another solicitor, Dudley Field Malone, last evening to a Long Island dinner. His chauffeur made a wrong turn. Finally we asked a cop, how far away was our destination. "Thirty-five miles," he said. After a half-hour's drive, still lost, we asked another cop the same question. He replied, "Thirty-five miles." Said Malone: "Well, anyway, we have lost no ground."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Thanksgiving Day,
You say?
But how can I
Give thanks,
With all this anguish
Staring in my face?

The streets
Are nightmares.
Men prowl
Up and down
Like goaded ghosts!
Three years ago
Those men
Were eager, proud
And fit for any fight;
But now
They drift along
In shambling files,
Broken and reckless,
With their hope
All gone.
And at the corners
Scarecrow women stand
And beg:
Pale, bony hands
Out-thrust;
Too weak to scream,
Their blue lips
Fumble feebly
And their eyes
Clutch frantically
For help.
The sharp wind
Whips their rags.
And starving babies
Tug their empty breasts
And wail.

The streets
Are nightmares,
And the farms
Lie waste
Against the sky.
The factory chimneys loom
Like ribs plucked bare
By buzzards of despair.
The mines are still;
The mill yards
Thick with weeds,
And on the highways
There's a ceaseless line
Of crawling forms,
Like files
Of starving ants.

Thanksgiving Day,
You say?
But how can I
Give thanks,
With all this anguish
Staring in my face?

AND YET I CAN
IN SPITE
THIS DESPERATE FEAR,
THIS WRECKING
OF OUR LAND,
THERE STILL ARE THINGS
FOR WHICH WE CAN GIVE THANKS!

Thank God
We've pity
For each other's pain!
Thank God
We've got understanding
Of each other's shame!
Thank God
We've anger
That these things
Should be,
And faith and courage
Which will set us free
From fear, and want,
And dark adversity.

FOR THESE GOOD GIFTS—FOR LOVE AND PITY, UNDERSTANDING,
COURAGE AND CLEAN RAGE, AND STUDY FAITH—
WE THANK THEE, GOD.
AND TO THIS CAUSE—
OUR NATION'S NEED—
WE PLEDGE OUR SOULS
TODAY!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you ever extend compliments to members of your family?

If not, why don't you try it?

You will be surprised how much brighter and happier things will look around home by this method.

If mother makes a good pie, tell her; it isn't enough to eat it.

Don't grumble if it is not 100 per cent perfect.

Don't compare it unfavorably with other pies you have eaten.

Have you reason to believe that your child or your wife or any other person should be more perfect in performance than you are, generally?

It is so much easier to see defects than to correct them when you are responsible yourself.

If mother looks particularly nice, notice it and speak of it.

Oh no, she is not too old to care what you think.

And daughter, she likes to have dad say a word of appreciation, too.

And while you are expressing approbation don't forget that dad does kind things for you all and he'd get a thrill if he heard you say so.

He doesn't often hear anything of a complimentary nature.

Debts, Taxes and Mrs. Hibben's Cook Book

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era," and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

With the American position on the proposed transfer of the debts thoroughly understood, Viscount Snowden, former Chancellor of England, has just written an article for the New York Times with the view to educating American sentiment and convincing us that we should pay the debts of Europe and have the "capacity to pay" all of them.

He says:

"All European debtor nations have relied hitherto on the receipt of German reparations to meet their debt payments."

In other words, up to this time, the payment on these debts has not meant a penny of taxes out of the pockets of the people.

Snowden is convinced that it is ethically wrong for this country to collect its debts if the nations that made the loans have to tax their own people to get the money; and that it is ethically right that we should tax our people to pay the debts of all of them.

Incidentally, he sets forth the position of Woodrow Wilson, during whose administration the debts were contracted:

"This proposal (to cancel) America has declined to accept. It was first submitted by Lloyd George in 1920 to President Wilson. He rejected it emphatically and at the same time demanded that Britain should begin to repay the American debt."

With the debtor nations spending billions on armament every year while pleading an incapacity to pay their debts, the American decision is that they must pay or default. In the latter event we shall pay their debts out of taxation on Americans, anyway, but the record will be straight, and we shall know better in the future.

* * *

No Time to Hide Under a Bushel

Meanwhile, in Washington, they are struggling with the problem of meeting another great and growing deficit—which proves our "capacity to pay" the debts of 11 other nations! We shall have to pile more taxes on to the enormous taxes we now pay to save the credit of the nation.

Before the statesmen decide to increase further the already destructive taxes on legitimate enterprise and industry, it would be well for them to take notice of the public's demand and, through an immediate modification of the Volstead act, reopen the breweries and put a tax on beer.

Meanwhile, since President Hoover recently announced a plan for the saving of vast sums through governmental reorganization it is to be hoped that he will submit it in his message next month. The more we save the less we shall have to increase taxes; and if a plan is in readiness, as we were assured, this is no time to hide it under a bushel.

* * *

Paramount Duty Of the Hour

In the meantime, with millions celebrating the recent Democratic victory and others grieving "for those who perished with the cutter, but mostly for the (political) bread and butter," it is proper to remind ourselves that the winter is upon us and that millions are in distress through no fault of their own. An effort now is being made to raise money through private sources to prevent the actual starvation of women and children. Somehow this has been momentarily overlooked in the excitement over the election. It is hoped and expected that a change in policy in Washington will restore confidence and revive trade and create employment for the jobless, but little relief in that direction can be expected during the next four months.

The paramount duty of the hour is to make sure that everything possible is done to prevent suffering, if not starvation, this winter.

We can well afford to subordinate politics to the solution of this problem of humanity.

Now comes Thanksgiving to accentuate the tragedy in millions of homes. No doubt everyone will have turkey and chicken on Thursday; it is more important that they have bread, at least, on Friday and Saturday.

* * *

Fascinating And Exciting

Apropos of the pleasures of the tables, I have just been turning the leaves of the only cook book I have ever seen that seems to me fascinating and exciting. It is called "The Nation Cook Book" (Harpers), and is the work of Sheila Hibben. In France, and indeed all Old World countries, the traveler realizes that the various provinces have their distinctive dishes, and every gourmet wishes to experiment with as many of them as possible. Never before, I believe, has any one thought of putting between the covers of a book the recipes of the favorite dishes of the various far-flung regions of this country.

Here we have them—hundreds of them—and all tempting, in print at least. In a charming introduction, Mrs. Hibben calls attention to the history that may be read in these regional dishes. There is a racial or historic reason for so many of them that one almost wonders why a history of America cannot be written around them.

Thus in Charleston one actually may taste the flavor of the Huguenots that flocked to Carolina; and in Pennsylvania that of the Germans who peopled it predominantly in the early days; and in Louisiana one may visualize the French, the Spanish and the Creole at the table.

Political opinions change, but there is something eternal in the table taste of human beings. Not being an epicure nor a gourmand, I never thought to see the day that a cook book would seem as fascinating as a page of history; the day has come. Sheila Hibben's National Cook Book with its cover comments has brought it, and after months of politics the turning of its pages is like sitting down to a harvest dinner after the toil and heat of a morning in the harvest field.

* * *

ONE Thing Is Quite Clear

The nuisance in politics is that politicians never adjourn. The election is just two weeks in the past, and yet we appear to be in the midst of a heated mayoralty contest in New York City—the election of a year ahead—and with the election of a successor to Garner in the Speakership at least three months in the future, one would imagine from the press that the caucus would convene tomorrow.

There is excellent material among those mentioned for the succession, and no occasion for criminations and recriminations among the candidates. The great mass of the party soon to assume power, is in the success of the policies and principles enunciated during the campaign, and to this the personal aspirations of candidates are subordinate. But one thing is quite clear:

A development of factionalism or feuds based on candidacies would not only destroy the party solidarity, never so essential as now, but would wreck confidence in the party's capacity to govern.

With an enormous majority in the House, the organization there must have the hearty co-operation of every member of the majority, if a record is to be made that will commend the party to the people in the next election.

Our advice to candidates for the Speakership is to think three times before they make a statement, and in making the statement bear in mind that the party interest is paramount.
